ZACH CHANDLER.

Found Dead in Bed at the Grand Pacific, Chicago, This Morning.

Last Night He Addressed an Immense Audience in that City.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Senator Zach Chandler, of Michigan, was found dead in bed, at the Grand Pacific Hotel, this morning. He had been speaking in Wisconsin, and last night, addressed

AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE

at McCormick's Hall, in this city, and spoke with his usual earnestness. After the meeting, when he and senator Logan and Hon. Jesse Spaulding were sitting in his room engaged in conversation, senator Chandler complained of indigestion, and as he had complained of the same distressing feeling while en route to the city with these gentlemen, Mr. Spaulding suggested that he remain over in the city till to-night, but he said business affairs required his attention at home, and an order was given to have him called in the morning at 7 o'clock. His friends then

BADE HIM GOOD NIGHT

and left. That is the last time the senator was seen alive. This morning when the office boy called him there was no response. As upon repetition silence prevailed the clerk effected an entrance through the transom, and found that the

SENATOR WAS DEAD.

The body was not quite cold and the physicians, who were present, decided that death occurred about three hours previous to the discovery. The face looked tranquil showing that death was painless.

The coroner will hold an inquest.

John B. Drake telegraphed to President Hayes the sad intelligence about 8 o'clock.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Senator Zach Chandler was born at New Bedford, N. H. December 10th, 1813; received an academic education; removed to Detroit and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was mayor of Detroit in 1851; was elected to the United States senate as a republican to succeed Lewis Cass, democrat, and took his seat March 4, 1857; was re-elected in 1863 and again in 1869. His term expired on March 4, 1875 and he was defeated for re-election by I. P. Christiancy, now minister to Peru. He succeeded Delano as secretary of the interior in which capacity he acted until Grant's term expired on March 4, 1877. He was chairman of the national republican committee in 1876. In 1877 when President Hayes appointed Senator Christiancy minister to Peru, Mr. Chandler was chosen to fill his unexpired term in the senate, which will expire March 4th, 1881. He leaves a fortune estimated at $2,000,000.

CRIME and CASUALTY.

CHOKED OFF.

Cornwallon, Oct. 31.—Clark Brown, convicted of the murder of his father and sister at West Winchester, the night of the second of September, was hanged here this morning in the presence of about seventy-five persons.

The prisoner walked with

to the gallows and said nothing. His confession had been given under seal to Rev. Dr. McNish.

After being placed on the trap, the black cap was drawn over his face, the noose slipped over his head, and during the delivery of the Lord's Prayer the bolt was drawn.

NOT A MUSCLE MOVED.

The pulse ceased to beat eight minutes after the bolt was drawn.

The following is

read by Dr. McNish after the execution:

"I, Clark Brown, who am soon to appear before God, my maker, make this my last confession. I told the whole truth before of the murder of my poor father and sister; I kept nothing back, and I alone did the deed, of my own accord, and no one helped me to murder my father and sister.

"I am charged with poisoning my uncle Warren Henderson and poor Georgie Hilliard. I positively deny the charge for I am innocent.

"I am also charged with poisoning a lady in a ball room, and I positively deny that charge, for I am innocent.

"I deny telling Alden Sharp that I

and hope in God's mercy she will never believe such a thing of me. It is my dying request that no suspicion should rest on my mother or my darling wife, for I, and I alone, am guilty and I am willing to suffer the penalty of death for my awful crime. I hope God has forgiven me. I cling to the firm belief that the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin, and even I hope to be forgiven through the sacrifice of the Son of God."

The Arizona Indians.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—The following is all the information now at hand:

Tucson, Oct. 30.—The following appears in the Revista Catolica of the 25th, published at Las Vegas, N. M.:

Santa Fe, Oct. 31.—A letter from Wingate says: The fort has been reduced to ashes by the Navajos and all the mules stolen, including the mail animals. Nothing is said of any killed or wounded. The abiguity of last night's dispatch was owing to errors in telegraphing.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

John McNarmy testified: I have resided in Fort Wayne twenty years; knew Sheehy seven or eight years; have known Swayne about three years; knew these two to be acquaintances; saw them on Calhoun street together last winter; never knew of an unfriendly feeling between them; I was at the fair grounds on the night of the 4th of July; saw Sheehy lying under the tree wounded, and helped to take him home; was at the dance stand from about 10 p. m. till I went home with Sheehy; I was at the grounds all the evening; I did not see Jack Swayne there that night.

Cross examined—I saw Swayne and Sheehy together at the Pittsburgh road last fall; did not hear them speak; do not know which way they went from there; it was about dusk the time I saw them on Calhoun street; do not recollect how Sheehey was dressed at the time, but know he wore a black hat; have not taken particular notice of this case, nor have I looked up any witness in the case; do not remember of ever having spoken to George Swayne about the case; went alone to the fair grounds on the 4th of July; when I got there I went to the hill by the race track, and then walked around about an hour; was alone all the time; after this I went to the fireworks, where I remained till they were ended; I think it was about a quarter of 10 when the fire works ended; after this I went to the dance stand, where I saw Iba; it was about twenty minutes after this that I saw Sheehy lying under the tree.

testified: My name is Mary Walters; am a sister of Jack Swayne, and saw him at my house about 1 o'clock on the 5th of July; he staid to dinner and left about 2 p. m.

Cross-examined—I live at 65 East Columbia street, and am the wife of David Walters; we formerly lived at 207 Calhoun street, and at that time my husband kept a saloon; my husband was asleep on the 5th of July when Swayne came; got up late that morning, as it was late when we went to bed the night before; we live up stairs and when Jack came I looked at the clock to see what time it was; have had the clock nine years; did not look at the clock again after dinner; Jack left about ten minutes after we finished dinner; do not know as he had a cap about the 4th of July; I do not know where he went after he left; he did not appear to be heated at the time; Jack laid on the sofa in the parlor after he came in and laid there till dinner was ready; have of course been greatly interested in this case and wish to see my brother acquitted, if he is innocent.

testified: I am a brother-in-law of Swayne, whom I saw at my house on the 5th of July, where he remained about one hour.

Cross-examined—Went to my house about 1 o'clock on the 5th of July; my judgment is not greatly warped in this case; was lying on the lounge when Jack came; it took me aboutten minutes to eat dinner and Jack left the table after I did; do not know how long Jack staid after dinner; I looked at the clock just after dinner and noticed that it was about 2 o'clock; I have taken considerable interest in this case, and have looked up some evidence in the case; I should like to see my brother-in-law acquitted; kept a saloon at 20 North Calhoun street about four years; can not tell how I remember the time that I looked at the clock.

GEORGE BOURIE TESTIFIED.

I am a son of L. Bourie, and am 16 years old; Arthur T. Dodge is next door neighbor to my father; my father's house is next to the 'bus barns; I once owned a white handled knife having two blades and a cork screw; I got this knife from Paul Gatick and it was marked "G. B." with the letters reversed; the small blade was broken and I had a new one put in; there was one day some pigeons in the yard and threw the knife at them and it went into Mr. Dodge's yard, and I could not find it. [He was here shown the knife, which was assumed to be Swayne's knife, and identified it as his knife.]

ZACH CHANDLER.

Found Dead in Bed at the Grand Pacific, Chicago, This Morning.

Last Night He Addressed an Immense Audience in that City.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Senator Zach Chandler, of Michigan, was found dead in bed, at the Grand Pacific Hotel, this morning. He had been speaking in Wisconsin, and last night, addressed

AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE

at McCormick's Hall, in this city, and spoke with his usual earnestness. After the meeting, when he and senator Logan and Hon. Jesse Spaulding were sitting in his room engaged in conversation, senator Chandler complained of indigestion, and as he had complained of the same distressing feeling while en route to the city with these gentlemen, Mr. Spaulding suggested that he remain over in the city till to-night, but he said business affairs required his attention at home, and an order was given to have him called in the morning at 7 o'clock. His friends then and left. That is the last time the senator was seen alive. This morning when the office boy called him there was no response. As upon repetition silence prevailed the clerk effected an entrance through the transom and found that the

SENATOR WAS DEAD.

The body was not quite cold and the physicians, who were present, decided that death occurred about three hours previous to the discovery. The face looked tranquil showing that death was painless.

The coroner will hold an inquest.

John B. Drake telegraphed to President Hayes the sad intelligence about 8 o'clock.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Senator Zach Chandler was born at New Bedford, N. H. December 10th, 1813; received an academic education; removed to Detroit and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was mayor of Detroit in 1851; was elected to the United States senate as a republican to succeed Lewis Cass, democrat, and took his seat March 4, 1857; was re-elected in 1863 and again in 1869. His term expired on March 4, 1875 and he was defeated for re-election by I. P. Christiancy, now minister to Peru. He succeeded Delano as secretary of the interior in which capacity he acted until Grant's term expired on March 4, 1877. He was chairman of the national republican committee in 1876. In 1877 when President Hayes appointed Senator Christiancy minister to Peru, Mr. Chandler was chosen to fill his unexpired term in the senate, which will expire March 4th, 1881. He leaves a fortune estimated at $2,000,000.

CRIME and CASUALTY.

CHOKED OFF.

Cornwallon, Oct. 31.—Clark Brown, convicted of the murder of his father and sister at West Winchester, the night of the second of September, was hanged here this morning in the presence of about seventy-five persons.

The prisoner walked with

to the gallows and said nothing. His confession had been given under seal to Rev. Dr. McNish.

After being placed on the trap, the black cap was drawn over his face, the noose slipped over his head, and during the delivery of the Lord's Prayer the bolt was drawn.

NOT A MUSCLE MOVED.

The pulse ceased to beat eight minutes after the bolt was drawn.

The following is

read by Dr. McNish after the execution:

"I, Clark Brown, who am soon to appear before God, my maker, make this my last confession. I told the whole truth before of the murder of my poor father and sister; I kept nothing back, and I alone did the deed, of my own accord, and no one helped me to murder my father and sister.

"I am charged with poisoning my uncle Warren Henderson and poor Georgie Hilliard. I positively deny the charge for I am innocent.

"I am also charged with poisoning a lady in a ball room, and I positively deny that charge, for I am innocent.

"I deny telling Alden Sharp that I

and hope in God's mercy she will never believe such a thing of me. It is my dying request that no suspicion should rest on my mother or my darling wife, for I, and I alone, am guilty and I am willing to suffer the penalty of death for my awful crime. I hope God has forgiven me. I cling to the firm belief that the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin, and even I hope to be forgiven through the sacrifice of the Son of God."

The Arizona Indians.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—The following is all the information now at hand:

Tucson, Oct. 30.—The following appears in the Revista Catolica of the 25th, published at Las Vegas, N. M.:

Santa Fe, Oct. 31.—A letter from Wingate says: The fort has been reduced to ashes by the Navajos and all the mules stolen, including the mail animals. Nothing is said of any killed or wounded. The ubiquity of last night's dispatch was owing to errors in telegraphing.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

John McNarmy testified: I have resided in Fort Wayne twenty years; knew Sheehy seven or eight years; have known Swayne about three years; knew these two to be acquaintances; saw them on Calhoun street together last winter; never knew of an unfriendly feeling between them; I was at the fair grounds on the night of the 4th of July; saw Sheehy lying under the tree wounded, and helped to take him home; was at the dance stand from about 10 p. m. till I went home with Sheehy; I was at the grounds all the evening; I did not see Jack Swayne there that night.

Cross examined—I saw Swayne and Sheehy together at the Pittsburgh road last fall; did not hear them speak; do not know which way they went from there; it was about dusk the time I saw them on Calhoun street; do not recollect how Sheehey was dressed at the time, but know he wore a black hat; have not taken particular notice of this case, nor have I looked up any witness in the case; do not remember of ever having spoken to George Swayne about the case; went alone to the fair grounds on the 4th of July; when I got there I went to the hill by the race track, and then walked around about an hour; was alone all the time; after this I went to the fireworks, where I remained till they were ended; I think it was about a quarter of 10 when the fire works ended; after this I went to the dance stand, where I saw Iba; it was about twenty minutes after this that I saw Sheehy lying under the tree.

testified: My name is Mary Walters; am a sister of Jack Swayne, and saw him at my house about 1 o'clock on the 5th of July; he staid to dinner and left about 2 p. m.

Cross-examined—I live at 65 East Columbia street, and am the wife of David Walters; we formerly lived at 207 Calhoun street, and at that time my husband kept a saloon; my husband was asleep on the 5th of July when Swayne came; got up late that morning, as it was late when we went to bed the night before; we live up stairs and when Jack came I looked at the clock to see what time it was; have had the clock nine years; did not look at the clock again after dinner; Jack left about ten minutes after we finished dinner; do not know as he had a cap about the 4th of July; I do not know where he went after he left; he did not appear to be heated at the time; Jack laid on the sofa in the parlor after he came in and laid there till dinner was ready; have of course been greatly interested in this case and wish to see my brother acquitted, if he is innocent.

testified: I am a brother-in-law of Swayne, whom I saw at my house on the 5th of July, where he remained about one hour.

Cross-examined—Went to my house about 1 o'clock on the 5th of July; my judgment is not greatly warped in this case; was lying on the lounge when Jack came; it took me about ten minutes to eat dinner and Jack left the table after I did; do not know how long Jack staid after dinner; I looked at the clock just after dinner and noticed that it was about 2 o'clock; I have taken considerable interest in this case, and have looked up some evidence in the case; I should like to see my brother-in-law acquitted; kept a saloon at 20 North Calhoun street about four years; can not tell how I remember the time that I looked at the clock.

GEORGE BOURIE TESTIFIED.

I am a son of L. Bourie, and am 16 years old; Arthur T. Dodge is next door neighbor to my father; my father's house is next to the 'bus barns; I once owned a white handled knife having two blades and a cork screw; I got this knife from Paul Gutick and it was marked "G. B." with the letters reversed; the small blade was broken and I had a new one put in; there was one day some pigeons in the yard and threw the knife at them and it went into Mr. Dodge's yard, and I could not find it. [He was here shown the knife, which was assumed to be Swayne's knife, and identified it as his knife.]

THE McDONALD boom seems to be contagious. If the senator wants to be governor, all he has to do is to say so.

THE Tammany cohorts in New York are reported to be rapidly deserting the KELLY standard. KELLY'S forces will probably cut a very ridiculous figure on election day.

GIBBON secured immortality by his great "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." The future GIBBON can find a theme worthy of his pen in a "History of the Rise and Fall of the Dry Goods Business of Columbia Street." It would make "mighty interesting reading."

THE following important admission appears in the Gazette:

A new impetus has been given to business on Columbia street, which is now doing more business than during the past ten years.

To be sure. That is the result of the SENTINEL'S missionary work. But the "fossils" ought to be more cheerful over it.

ONE week ago to-day the SENTINEL stirred up the Columbia street fossils with its long pole. They have been cursing, and fuming, and blowing ever since, but the fact remains that what the SENTINEL said about them was true, and that is where the shoe pinches. The few enterprising men on the street, most of whom have been named in the SENTINEL, are largely out numbered by the fossils and Rip Van Winkles, and hence it is that while a few firms in the retail trade, by their individual enterprise, continue to do a good business, the most of them are being thrown further and further into the background every year.

STATE POLITICS.

The Huntington Herald is solid for Grant in 1880.

The Columbia City Post says:

It is altogether probable that Judge New will be the democratic candidate for governor in 1880.

The Peru Sentinel says:

Hon. Wm. E. English is coming into prominence. He may yet be called upon to take a place on the state or national democratic ticket.

The Valparaiso Messenger comes out in favor of the nomination of Hon. Samuel J. Tilden for president and Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks for vice-president.

The Auburn Courier says:

We are no more in favor of Hendricks than we are opposed to Tilden, neither do we oppose Tilden because we are in favor of Hendricks. Our objection to Tilden are numerous, and as we think, well founded. We neither expect to be hurt or benefitted by Tilden's nomination and election, the the former is barely probable and the latter is not possible.

In some parts of the east it has become so abundant as to cause serious alarm, especially in North Carolina, where it springs up simultaneously with the grain, nearly smothering it. The people have given it the name of "Dutch cockle."

Lime occurs to a greater or less extent in all plants, especially in clover, pea-straw, potato vines and tobacco. The phosphate of lime is found in every animal tissue, as well as in fruits and seeds. It forms about half the substance of the bones of animals, and is contained in the vegetable, flesh-forming substances, as albumen, casein and fibrin, from which source it is obtained by animals.

To rejuvenate old orchards, cut out all the dead wood, and three-fourths of the suckers. Scrape the trunks of the trees completely, remove all the old, hard, broken bark, wash with a preparation of whale oil soap and water, one pound of soap to a bucket of water, and give the orchard—not merely under the trees, but every part of it—a healthy top-dressing of good barnyard or compost manure. If there be any life or productiveness in the trees, this will bring it out.

In May last Miss Helen Hartwell, a school teacher, left Mason City, Ia., for the far west, and finally settled on a homestead of 320 acres near Firesteel, Dakota, and began teaching school to pay for it. The example of industry and pluck set by this young woman cannot be too highly commended, while thousands of able-bodied men in cities and villages are holding down dry goods boxes on street corners and howling at hard times, and discussing great questions of finance and free lunches.

The following is given as a correct rule for measuring corn in the crib: Multiply the length by the breadth, and this product by the depth of corn in the pen. Multiply this again by 4½ and point off one decimal place; this result will be the answer in bushels. For instance, we have a pen of corn 10 feet long, 7½ feet wide and 8½ feet high. Then multiplying these dimensions together, we have 3,070 cubic feet. Now multiplying this by 4½ we have 13,770. Pointing off the one decimal we have as the contents of the pen, 1,377 bushels.

Death of Joe Hooker.

Gen. Joe Hooker died suddenly Friday evening at his home in Garden City, N. J.

He was born at Old Hadley Nov. 13, 1823, entered West Point in 1833, graduated in 1837, served with distinction on the frontier and in the Florida and Mexican wars. In 1853 he resigned from the army and settled on a California farm. In 1858 he was appointed superintendent of military roads in Oregon. From 1859 to 1861 he was colonel of the California militia. When the war broke out he was appointed brigadier general of volunteers and assigned to the defense of Washington. He served through the entire war with conspicuous bravery and at one time commanded the Army of the Potomac. He fought in more great battles than any other general officer in the army and thus gained the sobriquet of "Fighting Joe Hooker," which was well deserved. Since Oct. 15, 1868 Gen. Hooker has been (at his own request) on the retired list as a full major general.

Rev. George H. Thayer, an old citizen of this vicinity, known to every one as a most influential citizen and Christian minister of the M. E. It is having a tremendous sale over our counters, and is giving perfect satisfaction in all cases of lung diseases, such as nothing else has done.

[Miami County Sentinel.]

The genial Mart Bulger, of Fort Wayne, was in our city last Saturday, and gave us a call.

J. D. Cook, the engineer who superintended the erection of the Peru water works, has charge of those being put in at Fort Wayne.

[Warsaw Republican.]

Fort Wayne papers almost lost sight of the water works discussions this week. The trial of Jack Swain for the murder of John Sheehy, at the dance on the fair grounds on the night of the 4th of July last, gave them something else to write about.

Judge Lowry was a caller Monday morning. Besides his duties as the judge of the Allen superior court, which is in session almost constantly, he presides in a great many important cases in the circuit court in this section of the state. Probably no jurist in the state more fully enjoys the confidence of the people for his integrity, impartiality and high legal attainments than Judge Lowry.

THE McDONALD boom seems to be contagious. If the senator wants to be governor, all he has to do is to say so.

THE Tammany cohorts in New York are reported to be rapidly deserting the KELLY standard. KELLY'S forces will probably cut a very ridiculous figure on election day.

GIBBON secured immortality by his great "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." The future GIBBON can find a theme worthy of his pen in a "History of the Rise and Fall of the Dry Goods Business of Columbia Street." It would make "mighty interesting reading."

THE following important admission appears in the Gazette:

A new impetus has been given to business on Columbia street, which is now doing more business than during the past ten years.

To be sure. That is the result of the SENTINEL'S missionary work. But the "fossils" ought to be more cheerful over it.

ONE week ago to-day the SENTINEL stirred up the Columbia street fossils with its long pole. They have been cursing, and fuming, and blowing ever since, but the fact remains that what the SENTINEL said about them was true, and that is where the shoe pinches. The few enterprising men on the street, most of whom have been named in the SENTINEL, are largely outnumbered by the fossils and Rip Van Winkles, and hence it is that while a few firms in the retail trade, by their individual enterprise, continue to do a good business, the most of them are being thrown further and further into the background every year.

STATE POLITICS.

The Huntington Herald is solid for Grant in 1880.

It is altogether probable that Judge New will be the democratic candidate for governor in 1880.

The Peru Sentinel says:

Hon. Wm. E. English is coming into prominence. He may yet be called upon to take a place on the state or national democratic ticket.

The Valparaiso Messenger comes out in favor of the nomination of Hon. Samuel J. Tilden for president and Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks for vice-president.

The Auburn Courier says:

We are no more in favor of Hendricks than we are opposed to Tilden, neither do we oppose Tilden because we are in favor of Hendricks. Our objection to Tilden are numerous, and as we think, well founded. We neither expect to be hurt or benefitted by Tilden's nomination, and election, the one former is barely probable and the latter is not possible.

FARM NOTES.

Iron is found in the ashes of all the plants used for human food.

Two hundred thousand acres of timber are annually required for ties for the railroads of the United States.

The best butter that is made in France for exportation to England is not salted, but is simply washed in a strong solution instead of pure water.

At the present prices of labor and material, a creamery, including all the apparatus for making butter and cheese from the milk of 600 cows, will cost about $2,000.

The soil should be fed so that it in turn may feed plants; for in proportion to the richness of the soil, either natural or artificial, in just such proportion may it be made to yield a heavy crop.

Thick lime whitewash, thinned with a strong decoction of tobacco stems, applied to fruit trees just as winter sets in, is recommended as a preventive against rabbits and other animals gnawing the bark during the winter season.

In Russia the proportion of farm laborers is one man to every 11½ acres. In the best farmed sections of the western part of the United States, where improved machinery is largely used, it does not exceed one man to every 100 acres.

Fasten a short piece of log-chain—say five or six links—by means of a light strap to his leg, just above the knee, in the stable of course, and see how quickly that pawing horse will leave off the habit. In most cases a few days will cure. So says a Tribune correspondent.

Another enemy to wheat growers is reported in the shape of a weed somewhat resembling cockle. In some parts of the east it has become so abundant as to cause serious alarm, especially in North Carolina, where it springs up simultaneously with the grain, nearly smothering it. The people have given it the name of "Devil cockle."

Lime occurs to a greater or less extent in all plants, especially in clover, pea-straw, potato vines and tobacco. The phosphate of lime is found in every animal tissue, as well as in fruits and seeds. It forms about half the substance of the bones of animals, and is contained in the vegetable, flesh-forming substances, as albumen, casein and fibrin, from which source it is obtained by animals.

To rejuvenate old orchards, cut out all the dead wood, and three-fourths of the suckers. Scrape the trunks of the trees completely, remove all the old, hard, broken bark, wash with a preparation of whale oil soap and water, one pound of soap to a bucket of water, and give the orchard—not merely under the trees, but every part of it—a healthy top-dressing of good barnyard or compost manure. If there be any life or productiveness in the trees, this will bring it out.

In May last Miss Helen Hartwell, a school teacher, left Mason City, Ia., for the far west, and finally settled on a homestead of 320 acres near Firesteel, Dakota, and began teaching school to pay for it. The example of industry and pluck set by this young woman cannot be too highly commended, while thousands of able-bodied men in cities and villages are holding down dry goods boxes on street corners and howling at hard times, and discussing great questions of finance and free lunches.

The following is given as a correct rule for measuring corn in the crib: Multiply the length by the breadth, and this product by the depth of corn in the pen. Multiply this again by 4½ and point off one decimal place; this result will be the answer in bushels. For instance, we have a pen of corn 10 feet long, 7½ feet wide and 8½ feet high. Then multiplying these dimensions together, we have 3,070 cubic feet. Now multiplying this by 4½ we have 13,770. Pointing off the one decimal we have as the contents of the pen, 1,377 bushels.

POSTAL POINTS.

Interesting Statistics as to the Workings of the Postoffice Department.

The statistics of the postoffice department for the current year are of great interest. The total deficit is $3,031,455; about $1,600,000 less than that of the preceeding year. The total revenue of the department for the last fiscal year is $30,041,982, an increase of $764,465, and the total expense $33,073,437; a decrease of $1,091,647 in comparison with the preceeding year. Of the last named amount $795,612 was saved by the law which changed the basis of postmasters' compensation from commission on stamps cancelled and the remainder by reduction of the compensation allowed railroads. The states returning the largest revenues were New York with $5,710,310; Pennsylvania, $2,732,593; Illinois, $2,398,627; Massachusetts, $2,087,228; Ohio, $1,976,440; Missouri, $1,124,555, and Michigan, $1,004,487. Alaska foots the list with revenue at $53.

The principal items of expenditure were as follows:

Compensation of postmaster	$7,182,239
Clerks in postoffice	3,413,295
Letter carriers	1,947,709
Railroad transportation	9,100,706
Star service, namely by horses and ordinary vehicles	5,537,245
Steamboat service	665,107
Foreign mail transportation	283,917
Receipts from stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards	28,147,074
From box rents	1,381,162
Net revenue from money order business	219,226

The aggregate gross revenue at the eighty-eight free delivery postoffices was about $13,000,000, and their gross expenses, including pay of letter carriers, etc., amounted to little more than $5,000,000. Auditor McGrew's report also shows that the number of domestic money orders issued during the fiscal year was 637,224, amounting to $88,254,541, and that the foreign money order business was as follows: Canada—16,231 orders issued, amounting to $316,283 and 20,757 orders paid, amounting to $339,072; Great Britian—64,310 orders issued, amounting to $894,859, and 19,740 orders paid, amounting to $345,761. Germany—47,342 orders issued, amounting to $829,788, and 25,462 orders paid amounting to $639,542. Switzerland 5,135 orders issued, amounting to $96,171, and 2,010 orders paid amounting to $55,829. Italy—4,070 orders issued, amounting to $108,352, and 349 orders paid, amounting to $10,040. Total amount of fees on orders issued, $862,042, and that the total net revenue to the government from this source was $219,226.

Death of Joe Hooker.

Gen. Joe Hooker died suddenly Friday evening at his home in Garden City, N. J.

He was born at Old Hadley Nov. 13, 1823, entered West Point in 1833, graduated in 1837, served with distinction on the frontier and in the Florida and Mexican wars. In 1853 he resigned from the army and settled on a California farm. In 1858 he was appointed superintendent of military roads in Oregon. From 1859 to 1861 he was colonel of the California militia. When the war broke out he was appointed brigadier general of volunteers and assigned to the defense of Washington. He served through the entire war with conspicuous bravery and at one time commanded the Army of the Potomac. He fought in more great battles than any other general officer in the army and thus gained the sobriquet of "Fighting Joe Hooker," which was well deserved. Since Oct. 15, 1868 Gen. Hooker has been (at his own request) on the retired list as a full major general.

Fort Wayne papers almost lost sight of the water works discussions this week. The trial of Jack Swain for the murder of John Sheehy, at the dance on the fair grounds on the night of the 4th of July last, gave them something else to write about.

CHAPTER XX.

SETTING OUT.

Mr. George Miller arrived in due course; and very handsome the young fellow looked, as he stepped ashore from the steamer to shake hands with his friends on the quay. Violet could not help greeting him with a pleasant smile: indeed, there was something in this sudden meeting that recalled other days. With great prudence, too, he forbore to express any special pleasure in seeing her again. She was only one of the little group of friends. He addressed himself almost exclusively to Mrs. Warreuer, as they proceeded to find their way up to Castle Bandbox.

Nor, on this first evening, were any of Violet's predictions fulfilled. All the happy old time had not completely gone. Mr. Miller laughed and enjoyed himself with the rest; he did not embarrass Violet with the least specialty of attention; his whole interest was apparently absorbed in his chances of getting a shot or two before starting in the yacht, and in the prospects held out by the Sea-Pyot of a comfortable voyage.

It was only by degrees, and that almost imperceptibly, that his influence in this small household began to tell. He was a young man of system, of minute observation, of careful, business-like provision, and could not understand at all the happy-go-lucky carelessness which marked most of Mr. Drummond's arrangements. With him a nine-o'clock breakfast meant a nine-o'clock breakfast; not a breakfast at ten, or half-past nine, or a quarter-past eight, as chance might dictate. For the first time his friends perceived that the pattern of the wall-paper was rather ludicrous, and that a defect in the frame-work of the window produced a draught. They were ashamed to confess they could not tell him whether the local whisky was under or over proof; indeed, none of them knew exactly what proof meant. There was now no vague loitering on the hills for the contemplation of landscape, nor needless waste of time over luncheon: the ground that had to be got over was got over in a proper fashion. Moreover, there was much less missing now. The young man showed himself an excellent shot. Old Peter had enough of it now: he was pretty nearly walked off his legs by this new pupil; while his former pupil ignominiously gave up the chase, lighted a pipe, stretched himself on the heather, where he could command a view of Morven, Mull, and Lismore, and told his companions to come back that way for him when they chose.

Moreover, the incorrigible carelessness of the head of the house became all the more apparent, for his accoutrements now lacked much of Violet's superintendence.

They had beautiful moonlight nights at this time; and they were accustomed to go out for a stroll after dinner, either up into the black hills, where the wan and mystic light was palely shining on the furze and rocks, or down to the shore, where the long, monotonous rush of the waves on the coast alone disturbed the profound and mysterious silence. Here, too, there was a great difference. The party was broken up somehow. Violet resolutely and invariably walked with Amy Warrener, chatting, when they did chat, about school-girl themes; Mrs. Warrener generally staid with them; Mr. Drummond and his guest led the way, the latter giving all the latest information about big-company swindles, stock-exchange transactions, the cooking at the Judæum, and so forth.

"Why do you never talk to Mr. Miller, Violet?" Amy Warrener asked one night.

"I don't understand politics; and I don't care about commercial matters," replied the young lady, evasively.

It was very clear that Violet did not at all care for the presence of Mr. Miller in Castle Bandbox. She seemed restrained and dispirited. A sort of indefinite apprehension appeared to hang over her, which Mrs. Warrener did not fail to notice.

Now, Mr. Miller, from the moment of his arrival in the Highlands, had been most considerate to the girl, and, whatever he might judge to be her feelings toward him, he had not sought to intrude himself upon her in the slightest degree. But, after all, a young man is but a young man; and he grew to think that, considering their past and present relations, she was dealing very harshly with him in so obviously and systematically avoiding any private conversation with him. His difficulty was to find an opportunity of speaking with her alone; and it almost appeared as if she recognized the fact, and was determined to outwit him.

At last he caught her. She had inconsiderately ventured down to breakfast without her ordinary companion, under the impression that Mrs. Warrener had preceded her. When she opened the door of the room and saw Mr. Miller there alone, she would have retreated, but it was too late.

"Violet," said he, "I want to speak to you for a second."

She knew what was coming: she advanced into the room, outwardly calm, but inwardly full of dread. She was vaguely aware that his face was pale.

"Have I offended you?"

"No."

She spoke in so low a voice that he could hardly hear.

"Why do you avoid me so?"

"Oh, I hope I don't do that," she said; but her eyes were still fixed on the ground.

For a second or two she stood irresolute, and then she seemed to summon up her courage to speak frankly.

"And if I am afraid of you, in however slight a degree," she said, in clear, low tones, "I have myself to blame. I am deeply to blame—I know that. I—I wish I had never seen you, nor you me; that would have been better for both of us."

"No, no, Violet," he said, kindly, and he came a step nearer; "that is what every girl says—natural timidity, you know: she doesn't know what is before her, and is afraid. For my part, I am very glad we have met, whatever comes of it; and if you would only give me a chance, I should cure your mind of all that apprehension. But how can I do that if you always avoid me? Don't you think it hardly fair? Would you treat any other friend of yours like that?"

"Oh, if I were only sure," she said, with a sort of despairing earnestness, "that we were friends, and only friends, how glad I should be to do all you wish! Believe that of me, anyway. If you would only let me think that—if you were satisfied with that—I should be so grateful to you! Will you?"

She was looking at him now, with her eyes full of entreaty. He, on the other hand, appeared to be wholly astounded.

"Violet," said he, slowly, "you have hinted this once or twice before. Do you really mean it? Do you wish me to abandon all hope of our being any thing to each other?"

It was precisely what she did wish; but there was a reproach in his tone which she felt keenly.

"No, not altogether," she said, quickly. "We need not become strangers; we might always remain friends. If I could only persuade you not to think of any thing else!"

He was deeply mortified, of course; and yet he could not quite believe her. Her liking for him had been declared years ago. There was no obstacle, that he could see, to the marriage. He had not even a rival.

At this moment steps were heard on the stairs. He seized her hand for a second, and said, rapidly,

"Don't make this final, Violet. There is some misunderstanding. You must let me hope."

She did not answer as she left the room; but there was that in her face that rendered him somewhat uneasy. Was it true that she really wished him to abandon all hope of securing her for his wife?

He put on his cap and went into the fresh morning air; he wished to be alone for a few minutes, for there was something about all this that he could not well understand. At this moment he heard Mr. Drummond inside calling "Violet! Violet!" A wild fancy struck him.

Was it true that he had no rival? Could it be possible that the girl had let her declared admiration—her worship, almost—of this man of eight-and-thirty run into a more passionate feeling? The mere suspicion sent a flash of fire tingling through his heart; and he found himself rapidly running over a series of incidents, unnoticed at the time, which now appeared to give at least plausibility to this random conjecture.

The relations existing between Mr. Drummond and his girlish pupil now assumed a wholly different complexion. In his first flush of anger and surprise and envy, the young man was ready to accuse his friend of having inveigled Sir Acton North's daughter into his house that he might marry an heiress.

But, after all, Mr. Miller was a sensible and prudent young fellow. He reasoned with himself. Was it likely that this gay-hearted, handsome girl, rejoicing in all the boundless hopes and activities of youth, should give away her life to a moping, dreaming, middle-aged man, who had just enough money to keep a moderately decent coat on his back? She was very fond of him—as his niece was. She had a profound admiration for him—as his sister had. Mr. Miller reasoned himself out of his first glow of belief and anger; but he went in to breakfast in a somewhat sullen and suspicious mood.

Now, indeed, the smallest trifles were magnified in the young man's alarmed imagination. He noticed how she brought the newspaper and placed it beside a certain cup. He felt sure that she had been out to bring in the fresh bell-heather, ferns, marigolds, and fuchsias for the table. When all had sat down to breakfast, he observed that Mr. Drummond addressed most of his chance remarks to her; and that she invariably looked up with a bright glance of gratitude when he did so. But he would observe still before speaking or acting.

Meanwhile there was a great bustle convulsing the ordinary quiet of Castle Bandbox, in the midst of which no one had time to notice how Violet treated her former lover. Every one was preparing for the approaching voyage in the Sea-Pyot. They knew they were about to play at keeping house, just like so many children; and every one pretended to know a vast deal about those very things, which, in serious living on land, they had treated with indifference.

The Sea-Pyot, which they could now distinguish lying at her moorings in the bay, was a yawl of some thirty-two tons register and about fifty tons yacht measurement; but she was an exceedingly roomy and comfortable vessel, considering her size. She had a fairly commodious ladies' cabin, a couple of state-rooms for single gentlemen, and a spacious saloon—she was any thing but a quick sailer with light winds; but could stand a thoroughly stiff breeze with absolute safety, and do her nine or ten knots an hour. She was worked by four men and a lad, the latter officiating as cook and steward.

It was universally resolved that, as Miss Violet was the most experienced voyager of the party, she should go on board and overhaul the table-linen, locker accommodation, bedding, permanent stores and the like; and this commission was gladly accepted, while stipulating that the others should accompany her.

The skipper—a handsome, good-humored-looking man of thirty-five or so, with a sun-tanned face and a light-yellow beard, who was an old friend and ally of Mr. Drummond's—received them with much ceremonious dignity at the gangway, and, in showing them over his ship, seemed particularly anxious to gratify the tall young lady, who was continually asking him abrupt and business-like questions.

"Come, Violet, it isn't fair to look a gift horse in the mouth. You ought to be sufficiently grateful to Mr. Sinclair," said Mr. Drummond.

"So I am," she said, doubtfully; "but suppose she is lying well over from the wind, how are we to get any thing to eat and drink? Then supposing we are beating up to windward, every time she is put about every thing will go flying across to the other side."

"Well, the people on the other side can catch them."

"In their lap?"

"Why not?"

However, there were no great fears on that score, and the party returned home, only regretting that a night must intervene before starting.

CHAPTER XXI.

"RAIN, WIND, AND SPEED."

Fierce and glad was the weather in which the Sea-Pyot spread out her great white wings and prepared for her northward flight. From over the tumbling Atlantic came varying gusts and squalls; the main-boom swung this way and that, and the loud flapping of the sails drowned the clanking of the windlass; rushing by went the huge green waves to the shore; and the hurrying clouds, as they came sweeping over from the sea—causing the islands to disappear, and re-appear, and disappear again—sent sudden showers across the vessel's decks, and made the voyagers tighten up still farther the necks of their water-proofs. Above and below the same confusion and bustle prevailed: nobody knew whether the fresh butter had been called for and brought aboard; excited questions were asked about the joints hung at the stern; and the voice of one tall person was heard declaring, in the most solemn language, that he would blow up the powder-magazine, destroy the bulkheads, and lash the taffrail to the topgallant-mast, if somebody did not help him to stow away the bottled beer. Then there was a sudden cessation of noise overhead. Gradually the saloon tilted over, and there was a muffled sound as of rushing water outside. Captain Jimmy, with the rain running down his ruddy face, observing to a young lady who stood beside him that he could not as yet relinquish to her the tiller.

"This is a nice sort of day to start in!" observed a young man, who was gloomily trying to keep the rain from getting inside the neck of his water-proof.

"What better could you wish for?" she answered, with a bright laugh. "How fast is she going, Captain Jimmy?"

The skipper glanced at the water running by.

"About echt knots, I think; but we'll get a bit more wind by-and-by, when we get round Lismore."

"Couldn't you let us have the topsail up?" she asked, throwing a critical glance upward.

A shrewd, cautious smile appeared on Captain Jimmy's face.

"She'll go ferry well without the topsail in a little while; and it iss better not to be too eager. You will get plenty of sailing when we will be going up the Sound."

And yet the voyagers appeared so little disconcerted by the weather they were encountering that their mirth grew wilder as the wind blew more fiercely; and the seas that came thundering on the bows of the yacht, and sending showers of spray right over the crouching figures, were only met by derisive shouts of laughter. Only one of these figures remained silent and sullen. Mr. George Miller did not seem to enter much into the sport. It was the private notion of at least one of his companions that the plunging of the Sea-Pyot among the waves was rendering the young man uncomfortable; but such was not the fact. Neither the motion of the vessel, nor the fierce rain, nor the numbing position in which he was compelled to sit, was responsible for the gloomy preoccupation of Violet's suitor. He had, indeed, other things to think about.

Yet surely, on board a yacht, in such weather, there could be little to increase his suspicions. It is true that both Mr. Drummond and Violet were obviously enjoying themselves; that generally Mr. Drummond addressed to her his profound impressions of life on board the Sea-Pyot; and that, indeed, both of them seemed bent on amusing themselves just as if they were a couple of children.

The luncheon was rather a desperate business—as Miss Violet had predicted on her round of inspection. They were beating up the Sound, with a short starboard tack and a long larboard tack; and as the latter offered more continued quiet, while the vessel did not heel over quite so much, it was resolved that they should drop below as soon as the Sea-Pyot had her larboard tack aboard. Mr. Miller would remain on deck—he was not hungry. And very soon he heard, through the sky-light of the saloon, amazing shouts of despair and shrieks of laughter, with now and again an ominous jingle of falling plates and spoons. In fact, the scene below was at first nothing but a wild scramble. Of course, there was a wild clutching at this object and that, all being secured except the cruet-stand, which had outstripped its companions in the race, and flung itself headlong—mustard, vinegar, and all—into Miss Amy's lap, who was not prepared for the charge, for she was clinging on to the bread-plate. When she had wrathfully retired to change her clothes, and come back again to resume her place, order had been restored by a skillful arrangement of objects, and luncheon was allowed to proceed.

When they went above again, they found that the rain had entirely ceased, the rain-clouds were withdrawing up the hills, and the great lonely mountains of Mull and Morven were being slowly revealed. What a desolate coast it looked in this sombre, gray light!

"That is the way with this coast," observed Mr. Drummond, who had lighted his pipe, and contentedly stretched out his legs on the white deck; "the weather changes every thirty minutes, and the scenery every thirty seconds. Miller, why don't you go below and get something to eat?"

"Thank you. By-and-by," was the answer.

"Shall I go down and get some things out for you?" Violet suggested.

"Oh no; don't you trouble," he answered.

"Here, Captain Jimmy, take the rope," she said. "My arms can't hold out any longer. Come along, Mr. Miller: Duncan and I will get you something."

He could not very well refuse so friendly a proposal; and so at last he got up, threw off his water-proof, and followed her down the twisting companion stairs. A small bell summoned Duncan into the saloon. And now Mr. Miller found himself the object of those very attentions which, since his arrival in the Highlands, he had observed Violet pay to Mr. Drummond.

"Don't you wait down here, Violet," said he; "I am sure you would rather be up on deck."

"Oh no," she said, carelessly; "I have constituted myself chief cook and steward on board, for I don't think Duncan is up to much, and I must see every body properly fed. I mean to surprise Mr. Drummond with an apricot-jam pudding at dinner; you will see his look of wonder when that appears."

"I should have thought so profound a philosopher would not have cared for such trifles," remarked Mr. Miller.

"It is because he is a philosopher," said Violet, warmly, "that he cares for both little things and great things. I don't see any harm in any one liking apricot-jam. I like it myself—I am most particularly fond of it."

"Well, of course; you show yourself a most docile pupil all day long."

She took no notice of the sneer against herself, for she was bent on clearing her master and teacher from the deadly charge that had been preferred against him.

"If there is any body in the world that puts little store by eating and drinking and such things, it is Mr. Drummond. He is not one of the men who live only to good dinners and a lot of money. He is the most unworldly and unselfish man I have ever seen or heard of."

There was a little extra color in her face. The young man, who was busy with the cold pie, did not answer; perhaps he was afraid of saying all he thought just at that moment.

Violet rang the bell.

"Duncan, as soon as Mr. Miller has finished, will you clear the table, please?—Would you kindly ring the bell when you have finished?" she asked, somewhat coldly, of Mr. Miller; and then she turned and left the saloon, and went on deck.

By this time they had got well past Loch Salen, and right ahead of them lay the open Atlantic, with Tobermory light-house on their left, and on right the gaunt precipices of Ardnamurchan Point running out to the ocean.

Mrs. Warrener linked her hand within Violet's arm, and led her forward a bit, apparently the better to command a view of the open sea.

"Violet, what have you been doing to Mr. Miller?"

"Nothing," the girl answered.

"There is something the matter with him: you see that."

"Yes, I do," she replied; and then she said, with proud indifference, "I have done nothing to offend him that I know of. If he chooses to make hsmself unpleasant, how can I help it?"

"Violet," said Mrs. Warrener, gently, "you ought not to speak of him like that; you ought to make excuses for him."

"Why should I, any more than any one else? I wish to be as friendly with him as with any one; but when I see him making this return for your brother's kindness in asking him to go with us—"

"Oh, James doesn't mind. Probably he doesn't see it."

"I wish I could believe he was sea-sick," said Violet, rather cruelly. "But it isn't that, for he has been smoking cigars all day. People say that on board a ship is a dreadful place for making people quarrel; but we haven't been on board here long enough, surely. There is one thing, however, certain enough. A ship is a bad place to bottle up inflammable materials in. If he imagines himself wronged or hurt in any way, there will be an explosion—and that before long."

She was right in her conjecture, as events were soon to prove. At length they sailed into a solitary little bay, where the water was almost without a ripple, and here the impressive stillness that reigned around was suddenly broken by the loud, harsh rattle of the chain-cable as the anchor plunged. The curlews whistled their warning-note as they fled along the shore; the sea-pyots screamed shrilly as they flew away across the loch, skimming the water in their flight; a single heron, uttering a low, harsh croak, heavily lifted his long wings and disappeared in the gathering twilight. Then all was peace again; and the darkness came gently down over the mountains, and over the still bosom of the lake, until one could scarcely make out the shore.

The red glow of the cabin sky-light was the only point of intense color in all this pale picture; even as in the yacht itself, where peace and silence seemed to prevail, there was but one fierce and hidden fire—in a man's heart.

The North Pole and Equator

Are not more widely distinct than the standard tonic, stimulant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the cheap and fiery local bitters which unscrupulous vendors foist upon the unwary as medicated preparations with remedial properties. The latter are usually composed in the main of half rectified alcoholic excitants, with some wretched drug combined to disguise their real flavor and are perfectly ruinous to the coats of the stomach. Hostetter's Bitters, on the contrary, has for its basis choice spirits of absolute purity, and this is modified and combined with medicinal extracts of rare excellence and botanical origin, which both invigorate and regulate the bowels stomach and liver. They effect a radical change in the disordered physical economy, which is manifested by a speedy improvement in the general health.

St. Joseph's Church, on Sixth avenue, New York, has a large and wealthy congregation. Its pastor, the Reverend Father Farrell, a faithful servant, known by his works, testifies to the wonderful curative properties of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia in inflammatory rheumatism, pains in the joints or loins, for it gives instant relief.

BLOOD and SKIN HUMORS.

The scourge of mankind—Old methods of treatment and remedies a failure.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the Great Blood Purifier and Liver Stimulant, is the most searching, cleansing, and purifying of this country. It may be detected in the saliva, sweat, milk, blood, and urine in forty minutes after taking the first dose, showing that it has entered the circulation and been carried to every party of the system. It forever eradicates the virus of Syphilis, Scrofula, Cancer, and Canker, those terrible blood poisons that rot out the machinery of life, filling the body with foul corruptions. Taken internally in conjunction with the external application of CUTICURA, the Great Skin Cure, it speedily cures Scrofulous Ulcers and Old Sores, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Tetter, Ringworm, Scald Head, Dandruff, and all Itching and Scaly Diseases of the Skin and Scalp.

ECZEMA ON THE SCALP.

Breast and Limbs Cured.

I have been afflicted with eczema or salt rheum on my scalp, breast and limbs for five years, during which time I have been under the treatment of physicians, or at mineral springs, or taking some kind of medicine. I have been treated by Drs.—— of——, Dr.——of——, and visited sulphur springs and taken numbers of patent medicines, all without the faintest approach to a cure.

April 1st last, I began the use of CUTICURA, which was immediately successful in my case, entirely curing me. I have not had a clean scalp for 15 years until the use of the CUTICURA entirely healed it and left it clean and healthy. The other parts of my body were affected in a more aggravated form, but are now completely healed. I believe myself completely cured. I shall continue the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as directed, for its wonderful action on the stomach and bowels and cooling influence on the blood. It will afford me pleasure, as I have done in many cases, to urge the afflicted to use these wonderful remedies.

Yours, etc., STEPHEN CROWELL.

CHAPTER XX.

SETTING OUT.

Mr. George Miller arrived in due course; and very handsome the young fellow looked, as he stepped ashore from the steamer to shake hands with his friends on the quay. Violet could not help greeting him with a pleasant smile: indeed, there was something in this sudden meeting that recalled other days. With great prudence, too, he forbore to express any special pleasure in seeing her again. She was only one of the little group of friends. He addressed himself almost exclusively to Mrs. Warrener, as they proceeded to find their way up to Castle Bandbox.

Nor, on this first evening, were any of Violet's predictions fulfilled. All the happily old time had not completely gone. Mr. Miller laughed and enjoyed himself with the rest; he did not embarrass Violet with the least specialty of attention; his whole interest was apparently absorbed in his chances of getting a shot or two before starting in the yacht, and in the prospects held out by the Sea-Pyot of a comfortable voyage.

It was only by degrees, and that almost imperceptibly, that his influence in this small household began to tell. He was a young man of system, of minute observation, of careful, business-like provision, and could not understand at all the happy-go-lucky carelessness which marked most of Mr. Drummond's arrangements. With him a nine-o'clock breakfast meant a nine-o'clock breakfast; not a breakfast at ten, or half-past nine, or a quarter-past eight, as chance might dictate. For the first time his friends perceived that the pattern of the wall-paper was rather ludicrous, and that a defect in the frame-work of the window produced a draught. They were ashamed to confess they could not tell him whether the local whisky was under or over proof; indeed, none of them knew exactly what proof meant. There was now no vague loitering on the hills for the contemplation of landscape, nor needless waste of time over luncheon: the ground that had to be got over was got over in a proper fashion. Moreover, there was much less missing now. The young man showed himself an excellent shot. Old Peter had enough of it now: he was pretty nearly walked off his legs by this new pupil; while his former pupil ignominiously gave up the chase, lighted a pipe, stretched himself on the heather, where he could command a view of Morven, Mull, and Lismore, and told his companions to come back that way for him when they chose.

Moreover, the incorrigible carelessness of the head of the house became all the more apparent, for his accoutrements now lacked much of Violet's superintendence.

They had beautiful moonlight nights at this time; and they were accustomed to go out for a stroll after dinner, either up into the black hills, where the wan and mystic light was palely shining on the furze and rocks, or down to the shore, where the long, monotonous rush of the waves on the coast alone disturbed the profound and mysterious silence. Here, too, there was a great difference. The party was broken up somehow. Violet resolutely and invariably walked with Amy Warrener, chatting, when they did chat, about school-girl themes; Mrs. Warrener generally staid with them; Mr. Drummond and his guest led the way, the latter giving all the latest information about big-company swindles, stock-exchange transactions, the cooking at the Judæum, and so forth.

"Why do you never talk to Mr. Miller, Violet?" Amy Warrener asked one night.

"I don't understand politics; and I don't care about commercial matters," replied the young lady, evasively.

It was very clear that Violet did not at all care for the presence of Mr. Miller in Castle Bandbox. She seemed restrained and dispirited. A sort of indefinite apprehension appeared to hang over her, which Mrs. Warrener did not fail to notice.

Now, Mr. Miller, from the moment of his arrival in the Highlands, had been most considerate to the girl, and, whatever he might judge to be her feelings toward him, he had not sought to intrude himself upon her in the slightest degree. But, after all, a young man is but a young man; and he grew to think that, considering their past and present relations, she was dealing very harshly with him in so obviously and systematically avoiding any private conversation with him. His difficulty was to find an opportunity of speaking with her alone; and it almost appeared as if she recognized the fact, and was determined to outwit him.

At last he caught her. She had inconsiderately ventured down to breakfast without her ordinary companion, under the impression that Mrs. Warrener had preceded her. When she opened the door of the room and saw Mr. Miller there alone, she would have retreated, but it was too late.

"Violet," said he, "I want to speak to you for a second."

She knew what was coming: she advanced into the room, outwardly calm, but inwardly full of dread. She was vaguely aware that his face was pale.

"Have I offended you?"

"No."

She spoke in so low a voice that he could hardly hear.

"Why do you avoid me so?"

"Oh, I hope I don't do that," she said; but her eyes were still fixed on the ground.

For a second or two she stood irresolute, and then she seemed to summon up her courage to speak frankly.

"And if I am afraid of you, in however slight a degree," she said, in clear, low tones, "I have myself to blame. I am deeply to blame—I know that. I—I wish I had never seen you, nor you me; that would have been better for both of us."

"No, no, Violet," he said, kindly, and he came a step nearer; "that is what every girl says—natural timidity, you know: she doesn't know what is before her, and is afraid. For my part, I am very glad we have met, whatever comes of it; and if you would only give me a chance, I should cure your mind of all that apprehension. But how can I do that if you always avoid me? Don't you think it hardly fair? Would you treat any other friend of yours like that?"

"Oh, if I were only sure," she said, with a sort of despairing earnestness, "that we were friends, and only friends, how glad I should be to do all you wish! Believe that of me, anyway. If you would only let me think that—if you were satisfied with that—I should be so grateful to you! Will you?"

She was looking at him now, with her eyes full of entreaty. He, on the other hand, appeared to be wholly astounded.

"Violet," said he, slowly, "you have hinted this once or twice before. Do you really mean it? Do you wish me to abandon all hope of our being any thing to each other?"

It was precisely what she did wish; but there was a reproach in his tone which she felt keenly.

"No, not altogether," she said, quickly. "We need not become strangers; we might always remain friends. If I could only persuade you not to think of any thing else!"

He was deeply mortified, of course; and yet he could not quite believe her. Her liking for him had been declared years ago. There was no obstacle, that he could see, to the marriage. He had not even a rival.

At this moment steps were heard on the stairs. He seized her hand for a second, and said, rapidly,

"Don't make this final, Violet. There is some misunderstanding. You must let me hope."

She did not answer as she left the room; but there was that in her face that rendered him somewhat uneasy. Was it true that she really wished him to abandon all hope of securing her for his wife?

He put on his cap and went into the fresh morning air; he wished to be alone for a few minutes, for there was something about all this that he could not well understand. At this moment he heard Mr. Drummond inside calling "Violet! Violet!" A wild fancy struck him.

Was it true that he had no rival? Could it be possible that the girl had let her declared admiration—her worship, almost—of this man of eight-and-thirty run into a more passionate feeling? The mere suspicion sent a flash of fire tingling through his heart; and he found himself rapidly running over a series of incidents, unnoticed at the time, which now appeared to give at least plausibility to this random conjecture.

The relations existing between Mr. Drummond and his girlish pupil now assumed a wholly different complexion. In his first flush of anger and surprise and envy, the young man was ready to accuse his friend of having inveigled Sir Acton North's daughter into his house that he might marry an heiress.

But, after all, Mr. Miller was a sensible and prudent young fellow. He reasoned with himself. Was it likely that this gay-hearted, handsome girl, rejoicing in all the boundless hopes and activities of youth, should give away her life to a moping, dreaming, middle-aged man, who had just enough money to keep a moderately decent coat on his back? She was very fond of him—as his niece was. She had a profound admiration for him—as his sister had. Mr. Miller reasoned himself out of his first glow of belief and anger; but he went in to breakfast in a somewhat sullen and suspicious mood.

Now, indeed, the smallest trifles were magnified in the young man's alarmed imagination. He noticed how she brought the newspaper and placed it beside a certain cup. He felt sure that she had been out to bring in the fresh bell-heather, ferns, marigolds, and fuchsias for the table. When all had sat down to breakfast, he observed that Mr. Drummond addressed most of his chance remarks to her; and that she invariably looked up with a bright glance of gratitude when he did so. But he would observe still before speaking or acting.

Meanwhile there was a great bustle convulsing the ordinary quiet of Castle Bandbox, in the midst of which no one had time to notice how Violet treated her former lover. Every one was preparing for the approaching voyage in the Sea-Pyot. They knew they were about to play at keeping house, just like so many children; and every one pretended to know a vast deal about those very things, which, in serious living on land, they had treated with indifference.

The Sea-Pyot, which they could now distinguish lying at her moorings in the bay, was a yawl of some thirty-two tons register and about fifty tons yacht measurement; but she was an exceedingly roomy and comfortable vessel, considering her size. She had a fairly commodious ladies' cabin, a couple of state-rooms for single gentlemen, and a spacious saloon—she was any thing but a quick sailer with light winds; but could stand a thoroughly stiff breeze with absolute safety, and do her nine or ten knots an hour. She was worked by four men and a lad, the latter officiating as cook and steward.

It was universally resolved that, as Miss Violet was the most experienced voyager of the party, she should go on board and overhaul the table-linen, locker accommodation, bedding, permanent stores and the like; and this commission was gladly accepted, while stipulating that the others should accompany her.

The skipper—a handsome, good-humored-looking man of thirty-five or so, with a sun-tanned face and a light-yellow beard, who was an old friend and ally of Mr. Drummond's—received them with much ceremonious dignity at the gangway, and, in showing them over his ship, seemed particularly anxious to gratify the tall young lady, who was continually asking him abrupt and business-like questions.

"Come, Violet, it isn't fair to look a gift horse in the mouth. You ought to be sufficiently grateful to Mr. Sinclair," said Mr. Drummond.

"So I am," she said, doubtfully; "but suppose she is lying well over from the wind, how are we to get any thing to eat and drink? Then supposing we are beating up to windward, every time she is put about every thing will go flying across to the other side."

"Well, the people on the other side can catch them."

"In their lap?"

"Why not?"

However, there were no great fears on that score, and the party returned home, only regretting that a night must intervene before starting.

CHAPTER XXI.

"RAIN, WIND, AND SPEED."

Fierce and glad was the weather in which the Sea-Pyot spread out her great white wings and prepared for her northward flight. From over the tumbling Atlantic came varying gusts and squalls; the main-boom swung this way and that, and the loud flapping of the sails drowned the clanking of the windlass; rushing by went the huge green waves to the shore; and the hurrying clouds, as they came sweeping over from the sea—causing the islands to disappear, and re-appear, and disappear again—sent sudden showers across the vessel's decks, and made the voyagers tighten up still farther the necks of their water-proofs. Above and below the same confusion and bustle prevailed: nobody knew whether the fresh butter had been called for and brought aboard; excited questions were asked about the joints hung at the stern; and the voice of one tall person was heard declaring, in the most solemn language, that he would blow up the powder-magazine, destroy the bulkheads, and lash the taffrail to the topgallant-mast, if somebody did not help him to stow away the bottled beer. Then there was a sudden cessation of noise overhead. Gradually the saloon tilted over, and there was a muffled sound as of rushing water outside. Captain Jimmy, with the rain running down his ruddy face, observing to a young lady who stood beside him that he could not as yet relinquish to her the tiller.

"This is a nice sort of day to start in!" observed a young man, who was gloomily trying to keep the rain from getting inside the neck of his water-proof.

"What better could you wish for?" she answered, with a bright laugh. "How fast is she going, Captain Jimmy?"

The skipper glanced at the water running by.

"About echt knots, I think; but we'll get a bit more wind by-and-by, when we get round Lismore."

"Couldn't you let us have the top-sail up?" she asked, throwing a critical glance upward.

A shrewd, cautious smile appeared on Captain Jimmy's face.

"She'll go ferry well without the topsail in a little while; and it iss better not to be too eager. You will get plenty of sailing when we will be going up the Sound."

And yet the voyagers appeared so little disconcerted by the weather they were encountering that their mirth grew wilder as the wind blew more fiercely; and the seas that came thundering on the bows of the yacht, and sending showers of spray right over the crouching figures, were only met by derisive shouts of laughter. Only one of these figures remained silent and sullen. Mr. George Miller did not seem to enter much into the sport. It was the private notion of at least one of his companions that the plunging of the Sea-Pyot among the waves was rendering the young man uncomfortable; but such was not the fact. Neither the motion of the vessel, nor the fierce rain, nor the numbing position in which he was compelled to sit, was responsible for the gloomy preoccupation of Violet's suitor. He had, indeed, other things to think about.

Yet surely, on board a yacht, in such weather, there could be little to increase his suspicions. It is true that both Mr. Drummond and Violet were obviously enjoying themselves; that generally Mr. Drummond addressed to her his profound impressions of life on board the Sea-Pyot; and that, indeed, both of them seemed bent on amusing themselves just as if they were a couple of children.

The luncheon was rather a desperate business—as Miss Violet had predicted on her round of inspection. They were beating up the Sound, with a short starboard tack and a long larboard tack; and as the latter offered more continued quiet, while the vessel did not heel over quite so much, it was resolved that they should drop below as soon as the Sea-Pyot had her larboard tack aboard. Mr. Miller would remain on deck—he was not hungry. And very soon he heard, through the sky-light of the saloon, amazing shouts of despair and shrieks of laughter, with now and again an ominous jingle of falling plates and spoons. In fact, the scene below was at first nothing but a wild scramble. Of course, there was a wild clutching at this object and that, all being secured except the cruet-stand, which had outstripped its companions in the race, and flung itself headlong—mustard, vinegar, and all—into Miss Amy's lap, who was not prepared for the charge, for she was clinging on to the bread-plate. When she had wrathfully retired to change her clothes, and come back again to resume her place, order had been restored by a skillful arrangement of objects, and luncheon was allowed to proceed.

When they went above again, they found that the rain had entirely ceased, the rain-clouds were withdrawing up the hills, and the great lonely mountains of Mull and Morven were being slowly revealed. What a desolate coast it looked in this sombre, gray light!

"That is the way with this coast," observed Mr. Drummond, who had lighted his pipe, and contentedly stretched out his legs on the white deck; "the weather changes every thirty minutes, and the scenery every thirty seconds. Miller, why don't you go below and get something to eat?"

"Thank you. By-and-by," was the answer.

"Shall I go down and get some things out for you?" Violet suggested.

"Oh no; don't you trouble," he answered.

"Here, Captain Jimmy, take the rope," he said. "My arms can't hold out any longer. Come along, Mr. Miller: Duncan and I will get you something."

He could not very well refuse so friendly a proposal; and so at last he got up, threw off his water-proof, and followed her down the twisting companion stairs. A small bell summoned Duncan into the saloon. And now Mr. Miller found himself the object of those very attentions which, since his arrival in the Highlands, he had observed Violet pay to Mr. Drummond.

"Don't you wait down here, Violet," said he; "I am sure you would rather be up on deck."

"Oh no," she said, carelessly; "I have constituted myself chief cook and steward on board, for I don't think Duncan is up to much, and I must see every body properly fed. I mean to surprise Mr. Drummond with an apricot-jam pudding at dinner; you will see his look of wonder when that appears."

"I should have thought so profound a philosopher would not have cared for such trifles," remarked Mr. Miller.

"It is because he is a philosopher," said Violet, warmly, "that he cares for both little things and great things. I don't see any harm in any one liking apricot-jam. I like it myself—I am most particularly fond of it."

"Well, of course; you show yourself a most docile pupil all day long."

She took no notice of the sneer against herself, for she was bent on clearing her master and teacher from the deadly charge that had been preferred against him.

"If there is any body in the world that puts little store by eating and drinking and such things, it is Mr. Drummond. He is not one of the men who live only to good dinners and a lot of money. He is the most unworldly and unselfish man I have ever seen or heard of."

There was a little extra color in her face. The young man, who was busy with the cold pie, did not answer; perhaps he was afraid of saying all he thought just at that moment.

Violet rang the bell.

"Duncan, as soon as Mr. Miller has finished, will you clear the table, please?—Would you kindly ring the bell when you have finished?" she asked, somewhat coldly, of Mr. Miller; and then she turned and left the saloon, and went on deck.

By this time they had got well past Loch Salen, and right ahead of them lay the open Atlantic, with Tobermory light-house on their left, and on right the gaunt precipices of Ardnamurchan Point running out to the ocean.

Mrs. Warrener linked her hand within Violet's arm, and led her forward a bit, apparently the better to command a view of the open sea.

"Violet, what have you been doing to Mr. Miller?"

"Nothing," the girl answered.

"There is something the matter with him: you see that."

"Yes, I do," she replied; and then she said, with proud indifference, "I have done nothing to offend him that I know of. If he chooses to make himself unpleasant, how can I help it?

"Violet," said Mrs. Warrener, gently, "you ought not to speak of him like that; you ought to make excuses for him."

"Why should I, any more than any one else? I wish to be as friendly with him as with any one; but when I see him making this return for your brother's kindness in asking him to go with us—"

"Oh, James doesn't mind. Probably he doesn't see it."

"I wish I could believe he was seasick," said Violet, rather cruelly. "But it isn't that, for he has been smoking cigars all day. People say that on board a ship is a dreadful place for making people quarrel; but we haven't been on board here long enough, surely. There is one thing, however, certain enough. A ship is a bad place to bottle up inflammable materials in. If he imagines himself wronged or hurt in any way, there will be an explosion—and that before long."

She was right in her conjecture, as events were soon to prove. At length they sailed into a solitary little bay, where the water was almost without a ripple, and here the impressive stillness that reigned around was suddenly broken by the loud, harsh rattle of the chain-cable as the anchor plunged. The curlews whistled their warning-note as they fled along the shore; the sea-pyots screamed shrilly as they flew away across the loch, skimming the water in their flight; a single heron, uttering a low, harsh croak, heavily lifted his long wings and disappeared in the gathering twilight. Then all was peace again; and the darkness came gently down over the mountains, and over the still bosom of the lake, until one could scarcely make out the shore.

The red glow of the cabin sky-light was the only point of intense color in all this pale picture; even as in the yacht itself, where peace and silence seemed to prevail, there was but one fierce and hidden fire—in a man's heart.

The North Pole and Equator

Are not more widely distinct than the standard tonic, stimulant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the cheap and fiery local bitters which unscrupulous vendors foist upon the unwary as medicated preparations with remedial properties. The latter are usually composed in the main of half rectified alcoholic excitants, with some wretched drug combined to disguise their real flavor and are perfectly ruinous to the coats of the stomach. Hostetter's Bitters, on the contrary, has for its basis choice spirits of absolute purity, and this is modified and combined with medicinal extracts of rare excellence and botanical origin, which both invigorate and regulate the bowels stomach and liver. They effect a radical change in the disordered physical economy, which is manifested by a speedy improvement in the general health.

BLOOD and SKIN HUMORS.

The scourge of mankind—Old methods of treatment and remedies a failure.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the Great Blood Purifier and Liver Stimulant, is the most searching, cleansing, and purifying of this country. It may be detected in the saliva, sweat, milk, blood, and urine in forty minutes after taking the first dose, showing that it has entered the circulation and been carried to every party of the system. It forever eradicates the virus of Syphilis, Scrofula, Cancer, and Canker, those terrible blood poisons that rot out the machinery of life, filling the body with foul corruptions. Taken internally in conjunction with the external application of CUTICURA, the Great Skin Cure, it speedily cures Scrofulous Ulcers and Old Sores, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Tetter, Ringworm, Scald Head, Dandruff, and all Itching and Scaly Diseases of the Skin and Scalp.

ECZEMA ON THE SCALP.

Breast and Limbs Cured.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen—I cannot refrain from adding my debt of gratitude to you for having placed within my reach the wonderful CUTICURA REMEDIES, which have rendered unnecessary all further experiment of physicians, and in a remarkably short space of time have rid me of a loathsome disease. I dispensed with all physicians two years ago, believing they did me no good. The CUTICURA has stopped this unsatisfactory expense—even if were necessary and I had the courage any longer to follow their advice—and brought the long-looked for cure and happiness.

I have been afflicted with eczema or salt rheum on my scalp, breast and limbs for five years, during which time I have been under the treatment of physicians, or at mineral springs, or taking some kind of medicine. I have been treated by Drs.—— of——, Dr.—of——, and visited sulphur springs and taken numbers of patent medicines, all without the faintest approach to a cure.

April 1st last, I began the use of CUTICURA, which was immediately successful in my case, entirely curing me. I have not had a clean scalp for 15 years until the use of the CUTICURA entirely healed it and left it clean and healthy. The other parts of my body were affected in a more aggravated form, but are now completely healed. I believe myself completely cured. I shall continue the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as directed, for its wonderful action on the stomach and bowels and cooling influence on the blood. It will afford me pleasure, as I have done in many cases, to urge the afflicted to use these wonderful remedies.

Yours, etc., STEPHEN CROWELL.

SWEARING FOR SWAYNE.

Important Testimony for the Defence in the Murder Trial.

The Defendant's Movements on the Fifth of July.

A General Attack Upon the Character of the State's Witnesses.

Interest in the Case Still on the Increase.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The following are the concluding portions of the evidence elicited yesterday afternoon in the Swayne trial:

GEORGE BOURIE'S TESTIMONY.

Cross-examined—I threw the knife at the pigeons because I was angry at them for eating the chicken-feed; I saw the knife strike the limbs of the tree, but could not see it fall to the ground; at the time there were tall weeds and grass in Mr. Dodge's yard; did not see the knife from that time till it was shown me by Mr. Colerick to-day; I did not know till last night I was to be a witness in the case; I was able to describe the knife before it was shown me by Mr. Colerick; am not related to Jack Swayne; my father keeps a wholesale liquor store at the corner of Calhoun and Clinton streets. The time I threw the knife was about the 4th of July last; the nick in the blade was caused by cutting into a lath; the knife was sharp when I got the new blade put in; have not talked with Geo. Swayne about what I would testify to; do not know as anyone was present when Mr. Guetig gave me the knife; live near the 'bus barn but do not go there frequently; they sometimes throw things from the windows of the 'bus barn into our yard; the fence between our yard and Mr. Dodge's is about five feet high; I have a brother who is intimate with the Swayne boys; have not talked with him about the case; do not know as there was any blood on the knife.

Re-direct—George Swayne told me to come to your office last night, but did not tell me what for; you (Colerick) asked me if I had lost a knife, and I said "yes;" you told me to describe the knife, and I did so; was not told that the knife had been found; I said I could be found at the East Washington street school; I again described the knife to you (Colerick) this noon, before you showed it to me.

AUGUST REILING'S TESTIMONY.

I reside at the corner of Bell and Ewing streets, and am a locksmith.

The witness here identified the knife as the one in which his son had put in a blade while he was absent in Warsaw about the last of June. The knife was called for by Mr. Bourie's son.

Cross-examined—I next saw the knife in his possession at my shop, where he was playing; I think the letters on the knife are "C. D," but can't tell; did not see any nick in the blade; noticed that the cork-screw was an extra good one; did not notice any blood on the knife; Mr. Colerick showed me the knife this forenoon.

MEINHARDT REILING'S TESTIMONY.

Am fifteen years old and work for my father; Geo. Bourie brought a knife to me to have a blade put in (here the witness identified Bourie's knife); I put in the big blade; recognize the blade I put in, as it has no notch in it to open it by.

LEWIS T. BOURIE'S TESTIMONY.

I reside at 223 Wayne street and have resided here 50 years; I am called the father of George Bourie; Mr. Geutig used to work for me; he gave a knife to my son; my son lives at home, and has frequently shown me the knife given him by Mr. Geutig. (Here identified the knife.) I think Geutig is now in New Orleans.

CLINTON BOURIE TESTIMONY.

Am thirteen years of age and a brother of George Bourie; Arthur Dodge lives east of my father's house. (Here identified his brother's knife.) I know the knife from the initials on it; he told me when he brought it home who gave it to him.

Cross-examined—I heard the testimony given here by my father and brother; have not conversed with my brother about the case.

O. B. WILEY'S TESTIMONY.

Am twenty-three years of age; am a son of a former treasurer of Fort Wayne: I am acquainted with John Swayne; saw him on the 5th of July, and walked with him on Clinton street to Berry, where Swayne left me.

Cross-examined—My brother did not read law with the Colericks; when I saw Swayne it was about 2 o'clock; I had a business appointment at that hour with a man at the seed store; took dinner that day at the Globe restaurant; I went there about 12.30; I went to the engine house after dinner; then went to Bourie's store, and after coming out of the store I saw Swayne; have been raised with Swayne ever since we were little "shavers;" have talked with George Swayne about the case, but did not tell him what I intended to testify to; am not related to any of the Swayne family; am acquainted with a great many members of the fire department, as I labored in the department about two years.

MAX NIRDLINGER'S TESTIMONY.

I have been residing in Fort Wayne thirty-two years; am a clothier at the corner of Main and Calhoun streets; was secretary of the citizens' committee on the 4th of July; saw Swayne on the 5th of July at my store, between 1 and 2 p. m.; Swayne came to collect a purse that was offered to horses that ran on the 4th; I told him to come the next Monday.

Cross-examined—Think it was nearer 2 than 1, as I had returned from lunch; cannot recollect how he was dressed; cannot tell whether any one was with him or not, but think some one called him before he went out; the day after the 4th is the dullest day of the year; did not notice in what direction Swayne went when he left; have no way of fixing the time at which I went to dinner on the 5th of July except my regular habit.

JOHN DRAKER'S TESTIMONY.

Am thirty-two years old and have resided here twenty-six years; am in the livery business; know Jack Swayne and saw him on the 5th of July at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Cross-examined—I kept a saloon about eight years; no one was with me when I saw Swayne; Al. Baldwin was with me; Swayne asked if the boys had returned the saddle which he had borrowed of me a few days before; I had dinner on that day at between 1 and 2 o'clock; after dinner I did some chores around the house; sawed some wood, which took me about half an hour, after which I went into the house and talked about an hour with my wife and children; looked at my watch just as I left the house and saw that it was 20 minutes after 2 o'clock; first recalled the fact of having looked at my time the next week when George Swayne asked me if Jack was not there on the 5th of July; Jack worked for me about a month four years ago; have not told any one that I wished to see Swayne acquitted; am the owner of a trotting horse which I trained at Swinney Park last summer; am not related to any of the Swayne family.

WM. DORR'S TESTIMONY.

I live in Fort Wayne and worked for the bus line on the 5th of July; have known defendant twelve years; I saw him about 3:55 p. m., at the corner of Calhoun and Columbia street.

Cross-examined—I know it was about 3.55 p. m., because I left the bus barn at 3.50; saw him again at 6.40 at the corner of Calhoun and Berry streets; I only go to the hotels so I always leave the barn at a certain time; I worked at the bus barn about two months; Jim Swayne worked there about the same time; have talked with no one about this case; traveled with Forepaugh's Circus six years; I then worked as brakeman on the railroad; Jack Swayne worked at the 'bus barn before I came; I was born at Palestine, Pa.; drove stage from Fort Wayne to Kendallville several years before I went with the show; he had on a dark hat and gray coat when I met him but can't tell the color of his pants when I met him; I said "Hello Jack;" don't know whether any one was with him or not; he was standing on the corner; I was alone at the time; I have not taken any personal interest in the case; know James Remison and Bob DeBar; I did not tell George Bear that I saw Swayne in there on the evening of the 5th; I did not see Swayne there that night; I saw him about twenty minutes before he was arrested; did not see Sheriff Munson around there; when I saw him at the drug store, I was standing there talking to him about a horse; was not talking about John Sheehy nor Lew Clark's dance house; saw Geo. Swayne there also; I saw Jack on the 4th; I know Mr. Hench; I don't remember of seeing Mr. Hench on the evening of the 5th of July; don't remember of seeing A. C. Trentman that night; I did not have it arranged to swear that Swayne was in the barn on the evening of the 5th until the knife business came up, and then located him somewhere else.

Re-direct—Wabash is twenty minutes slower than Columbus which would make the Wabash train due here at 4.10; I hitched up by Columbus time.

FLORENCE BERGER'S TESTIMONY.

My father's name is Rudolph Berger; his place of business is on Main street; his business is a leather dealer; I have lived here about 23 or 24 years; I am acquainted with the defendant; I saw him on Berry street between Clinton and Calhoun, between 3 and 3½ p. m.; I have known him about five or six years.

Cross-examined—I am a single man, and work for my father; am on speaking terms with Jack Swayne; I know his brother; I am a member of the fire department; was a member of the volunteers for about two and one-half years; talked with George on the engine house corner when he asked me whether I had seen Jack on the 5th; he asked me to be a witness in the case; only spoke to him once about the case or my testimony; was going to the fruit house when I met Jack on the 5th; I met him opposite Greenebaum's; I stayed at the fruit house ten minutes; it was about twenty-five minutes of four when I left the fruit house; I looked at my watch when I got to the engine house and it was exactly twenty minutes before 4 o'clock; I have a distinct recollection of that fact; I first remembered that I had seen him at that time when I heard that he was arrested; I heard that he was arrested at about 8 o'clock; I know Mr. Bonter by slight; I know Mr. Walters; I am not related to him or Jack; I don't know where we got acquainted; I know he is not a member of the fire department; I don't know what kind of pants he had on; but he had on a gray coat; I don't remember what kind of a hat he had on.

JOHN M'CARTEY'S TESTIMONY.

I am twenty-two years old; I have lived here nine years; my father is dead; I work at the Pittsburgh depot; I take care of the passenger rooms; I have worked for the company about two years; I quit work on the 5th of July at about 5:15 and went home to supper; I know the defendant; I saw him that evening in front of the Harmon House at about 5:15.

Cross-examined—I worked at the moulding trade about five years before I went to work for the Pittsburgh; Swayne was standing in front of the Harmon House; he was alone; I stopped and talked to him; I know that I don't go home before the whistle blows; it blows at about 5 o'clock; Jack did not say anything about the murder to me; I did not stop anywhere before I went to the Harmon House.

Re-direct—It is about 300 feet from where I work to where I saw Swayne in front of the Harmon House.

J. C. HAMILTONS' TESTIMONY.

I testified for the state; I am slightly acquainted with the defendant; I saw him on the afternoon of the 5th on Calhoun street, between Main and Columbia, on the west side; it was after 2 o'clock and before 3.

Cross-examined—I am a blacksmith; I keep a horse; he is not very fast, I wish he was; people called him fast, but they were mistaken; I saw Swayne on the Fourth with a horse; he was working for Wm. Myers at the fair ground; I got acquainted with Jack there; I didn't know him very well; I seen him but not very often; I met him on the 5th between 2 and 3 o'clock; to the best of my judgment it was about half past 3; I looked at my watch at 2 o'clock and met Swayne about half an hour afterward; he spoke to me and I spoke to him; I don't know what kind of clothing he had on; he asked me a question about some money; I didn't notice which way he went when I left him; I can't say how I remember that I looked at my watch at that time and that it was 2 o'clock, but I remember it; my time piece is all I have to rely on; I heard a woman say that Swayne was in the country at that time and I remembered of having seen him in town myself at that time; I wound my watch at 10 o'clock that night.

MORNING SESSION.

The testimony was resumed at 9 o'clock this morning.

GEO. EMERSON'S TESTIMONY.

I am a fireman on the Muncie road; have been working there and at the bus barn; don't know how long; have been in Fort Wayne for nineteen years; have known Jack Swayne for ten years; saw him on the 5th of July last on the Aveline House corner at five minutes after 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Cross-examined—I have been firing on the Muncie about two months; quit working at the bus barn the last of July; commenced working there about the 1st of May last; worked at driving hack and in the barn at various duties; before I worked at the bus barn I worked for the Muncie about a year; before that I drove a truck wagon; before that I was working up in Michigan; clerking in a hotel at Morenci, Mich., in the southern part of the state; before that I was driving a truck for Hank Brown; before that I worked at Olds's spoke factory about four years; am 23 years of age; live on corner of Harrison and Canal street over Baltes's lime house; I am a single man; I worked with Jack Swayne while he was working there about six weeks; I worked there also with Jim Swayne; I quit there about the last of July; I have known James Swayne about ten years; I know Mr. Walters; have known him a long time; we are good friends; know Mrs. Walters; have known her about four years; am in no way related to any of the Swaynes; have not spoken to any one in relation to the case excepting to the Colericks last night; am a horseman; am not a member of the fire department; do not spend much time at the engine house; saw Jack Swayne at the Aveline House corner at about five minutes after four; was driving a man around town by the hour and looked at the court house clock as I as driving down Calhoun street; I don't know anything about how the court house clock keeps time; I remember that he told me when he left the barn that he didn't want to be out over two hours; we drove out to the French Brewery and had three or four glasses of beer; I had not drank anything else before that; we only had four glasses of beer; Swayne was standing at the side of the drug store on the sidewalk near the iron railing; I did not notice who was standing with him; I spoke to him as I went by; he bowed to me; he was standing on the north edge of the sidewalk; I did not know that he was arrested until after I went to supper; I was not a "little off" on time; the doctor (Smith) whom I had out driving that afternoon was not arrested while he was with me; I got him and his wife at the Avenue House; we drove about town and then out to the French Brewry; we came back the same way that we went out, excepting that when we came back we went to get a street lamp; I saw him again that evening and took him out on the street where he sold his medicine; I took him back to the house, and got back to the barn about 9:15; he left the street once very suddenly on the 3rd; I remember that his wife had him arrested on the 6th; he was not arrested while he was with me at any time but on the 3rd; he left very suddenly; I do not know that he was arrested on the 3rd for violating the city ordinance; we were at the French brewery about half an hour; when we came from the barn we drove down Calhoun street; I have no interest in the case further than if I can do Jack any good by telling the truth I am going to do it; I never spoke to any one about the case excepting to George Swayne and the Colericks.

GUSTAVE WOLF'S TESTIMONY.

I live three miles west of the court house on the Columbia plank road; I know where Jacob Weist lives; I live about three minutes walk from him; I have lived here about twelve years; I am a diaryman; I do not know what the general reputation of Weist and his wife is in that neighborhood as to truth and veracity; I know that Jacob Weist's reputation is bad in that respect.

Cross examined—I have heard that fact mentioned by Phillip Zinck very often; I have heard his reputation questioned almost every day since this case is in, and so also before this case came up; he promised to pay his rent to Zink, but didn't pay it; the first time I talked with Zink about Wiest's reputation was before harvest; Zink said he was a man with no word; he promised to pay his rent, and never did it; I next spoke to Zink about it shortly afterwards; we talked about his reputation in reference to his pay since this case came into court; Weist and Zink have been having a little trouble about his rent; the fact is, Wiest hasn't many friends out there; no particular hard feeling exists between Zink and Weists; I like Wiest just as well as I do you or any other man; I can't tell who else I have heard speak of Wiest in regard to his reputation; I don't remember of having heard any one else speak of his reputation; I am a veterinary surgeon; my office is on the corner of Clinton and Columbia streets.

MELINDA BERGER'S TESTIMONY.

I live three miles west of the city, about 300 feet from Jacob Wiest's house; I am acquainted with Weist and his wife; their general reputation as to truth and veracity is very bad.

Cross-examined—I have heard the neighbors say that their reputation was bad; I heard one of the Jourdan boys and Mr. Jourdan say that they didn't believe much that he said; I have heard a great deal of that kind since then; there has been a great deal said about them since this trial has begun; I also heard a great many others speak about them, in fact almost everyone has said something about them; I heard Emma Miller speak about them several weeks ago; I also spoke with my father about them since the trial began; I don't remember who else I spoke with or heard speak of their reputation; I have heard no one speak of Mrs. Wiest's reputation; don't think that Jacob's reputation was manufactured for this trial; we are not on bad terms.

Re-direct—My father's name is Enoch Becker.

FRED W. FAHLSING'S TESTIMONY.

I have lived in this county 23 years; am a farmer; live 2½ miles west of city on the Columbia road; I live on the south side of the road; the Weists live about one-quarter of a mile from my house; I do not know the general reputation of Weist and his wife for truth and veracity in that neighborhood; do not know the reputation of Jacob Weist in that respect; I misunderstood the question; do know what his general reputation is; it is bad; know the reputation of Mrs. Weist to be bad.

Cross examined—I do not know how long Weist has lived there; I first found out that he lived there before harvest; don't know who I first heard speak of his reputation, but it was since this trial commenced; don't know much about it; can't tell who I heard speak of Mrs. Weist's reputation but what I did hear I heard since the trial came up; am not personally acquainted with Jacob Weist and his wife.

Re-direct—I have been a member of the grand jury from October to April; I also keep a diary; do not know the names of any parties who spoke of him as of bad reputation; never heard any one say that they were truthful.

NOT SO BAD.

An Indianapolis Reader Who Has Something to Say for Columbia Street.

To the Editor of the SENTINEL:

Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—I have read your criticism on Columbia street, and the mode and manner of doing business therein, and think you reflected rather severely upon that neighborhood. As I am somewhat familiar with Washington street, the great thoroughfare of the Hoosier capital, I beg leave to state that Columbia street can compare well, in some respects, with it, and actually discount it in others.

I had occasion to visit the two principal hardware stores in this city, and can state without contradiction that there is nothing here to compare with Morgan & Beach's magnificent establishment, or in the stove line with Prescott's palace. The leading hardware stores are very narrow, two little counters with a very small passage between; no light, except at front and a faint twinkling at the rear, compels them to turn gas at midday, while the sun is blazing outside. They have plenty of fine goods, however, but in this respect Columbia street can equal them.

There are no such iron stores here as those of Brandriff and Marsh Coombs—they cannot begin to equal them. A prominent lawyer of this city who visited Fort Wayne recently says, "Nothing here can equal Trentman's house or Fred Eckert's meat market," and I have heard ladies say that nothing in the way of dry goods can compare with Root's or Foster's, neither in the goods or attention of employes to customers.

You have great reason to be proud of your city and its business houses, and will become sure of this when you compare them with those of other places. Perhaps a little gentle criticism may stir up the sluggish ones and correct some loose matters, but do not be too hard upon them.

Yours, CAMDEN.

[Our correspondent should remember that neither Marsh Coombs, nor Trentman, nor Root & Co., nor Foster Brothers, nor Fred Eckert is on Columbia street. As to the other firms referred to by him—Brandriff, Prescotts and Morgan & Beach—they, with others, were excepted by the SENTINEL from its strictures on Columbia street business men.—ED. SENTINEL.]

This is to certify that I have been a great sufferer from piles for six years. I have doctored and have taken almost every medicine that I could hear of but with no relief until I used one package of Dr. Preston's New Medical Compound. I claim I am entirely cured. This medicine acts on the liver and blood, relieves constipation and thus cures piles. The above proved a blessing to me. Yours respectfully,

Stringent Laws Regulating Ohio Life Insurance Companies.

Ohio Life Insurance Companies can now only invest their funds in first mortgage upon real estate, worth double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, in Government Bonds, and in loans upon their own policies not exceeding the reserve value thereof, and must possess a sufficient amount of resources, with the low rate of four percent interest, to meet their obligations when they mature. The superintendent must annually examine every Ohio Life Insurance Company, and see that they possess the necessary investments, and that they are legally made. The laws of Ohio also provide that after three annual payments have been paid upon a life policy, in case of death the Company shall be estopped from defending itself by reason of any errors, omissions or misstatements in the application except as to age or fraud, which in effect makes Ohio policies incontestable after three annual payments have been made. No other state is so strict in regard to the safety of its policy holders. The Union Central Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati is the largest Ohio insurance company, and confines its loans to policy-holders and largely among farmers. It is an institution which is entirely trustworthy, and managed by gentlemen of high standing and large business experience. H. C. Schrader, No. 22 West Berry street, Fort Wayne, Ind., represents this company.

SWEARING FOR SWAYNE.

Important Testimony for the Defence in the Murder Trial.

The Defendant's Movements on the Fifth of July.

A General Attack Upon the Character of the State's Witnesses.

Interest in the Case Still on the Increase.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The following are the concluding portions of the evidence elicited yesterday afternoon in the Swayne trial:

GEORGE BOURIE'S TESTIMONY.

Cross-examined—I threw the knife at the pigeons because I was angry at them for eating the chicken-feed; I saw the knife strike the limbs of the tree, but could not see it fall to the ground; at the time there were tall weeds and grass in Mr. Dodge's yard; did not see the knife from that time till it was shown me by Mr. Colerick to-day; I did not know till last night I was to be a witness in the case; I was able to describe the knife before it was shown me by Mr. Colerick; am not related to Jack Swayne; my father keeps a wholesale liquor store at the corner of Calhoun and Clinton streets. The time I threw the knife was about the 4th of July last; the nick in the blade was caused by cutting into a lath; the knife was sharp when I got the new blade put in; have not talked with Geo. Swayne about what I would testify to; do not know as anyone was present when Mr. Guetig gave me the knife; live near the 'bus barn but do not go there frequently; they sometimes threw things from the windows of the 'bus barn into our yard; the fence between our yard and Mr. Dodge's is about five feet high; I have a brother who is intimate with the Swayne boys; have not talked with him about the case; do not know as there was any blood on the knife.

Re-direct—George Swayne told me to come to your office last night, but did not tell me what for; you (Colerick) asked me if I had lost a knife, and I said "yes;" you told me to describe the knife, and I did so; was not told that the knife had been found; I said I could be found at the East Washington street school; I again described the knife to you (Colerick) this noon, before you showed it to me.

AUGUST REILING'S TESTIMONY.

I reside at the corner of Bell and Ewing streets, and am a locksmith.

The witness here identified the knife as the one in which his son had put in a blade while he was absent in Warsaw about the last of June. The knife was called for by Mr. Bourie's son.

Cross-examined—I next saw the knife in his possession at my shop, where he was playing: I think the letters on the knife are "C. D," but can't tell; did not see any nick in the blade; noticed that the cork-screw was an extra good one; did not notice any blood on the knife; Mr. Colerick showed me the knife this forenoon.

MEINHARDT REILING'S TESTIMONY.

Am fifteen years old and work for my father; Geo. Bourie brought a knife to me to have a blade put in (here the witness identified Bourie's knife); I put in the big blade; recognize the blade I put in, as it has no notch in it to open it by.

LEWIS T. BOURIE'S TESTIMONY.

I reside at 223 Wayne street and have resided here 50 years; I am called the father of George Bourie; Mr. Geutig used to work for me; he gave a knife to my son; my son lives at home, and has frequently shown me the knife given him by Mr. Geutig. (Here identified the knife.) I think Geutig is now in New Orleans.

CLINTON BOURIE TESTIMONY.

Am thirteen years of age and a brother of George Bourie; Arthur Dodge lives east of my father's house. (Here identified his brother's knife.) I know the knife from the initials on it; he told me when he brought it home who gave it to him.

Cross-examined—I heard the testimony given here by my father and brother; have not conversed with my brother about the case.

O. B. WILEY'S TESTIMONY.

Am twenty-three years of age; am a son of a former treasurer of Fort Wayne: I am acquainted with John Swayne; saw him on the 5th of July, and walked with him on Clinton street to Berry, where Swayne left me.

Cross-examined — My brother did not read law with the Colericks; when I saw Swayne it was about 2 o'clock; I had a business appointment at that hour with a man at the seed store; took dinner that day at the Globe restaurant; I went there about 12.30; I went to the engine house after dinner; then went to Bourie's store, and after coming out of the store I saw Swayne; have been raised with Swayne ever since we were little "shavers;" have talked with George Swayne about the case, but did not tell him what I intended to testify to; am not related to any of the Swayne family; am acquainted with a great many members of the fire department, as I labored in the department about two years.

KAX NIRDLINGER'S TESTIMONY.

I have been residing in Fort Wayne thirty-two years; am a clothier at the corner of Main and Calhoun streets; was secretary of the citizens' committee on the 4th of July; saw Swayne on the 5th of July at my store, between 1 and 2 p. m.; Swayne came to collect a purse that was offered to horses that ran on the 4th; I told him to come the next Monday.

Cross-examined—Think it was nearer 2 than 1, as I had returned from lunch; cannot recollect how he was dressed; cannot tell whether any one was with him or not, but think some one called him before he went out; the day after the 4th is the dullest day of the year; did not notice in what direction Swayne went when he left; have no way of fixing the time at which I went to dinner on the 5th of July except my regular habit.

JOHN DRAKER'S TESTIMONY.

Am thirty-two years old and have resided here twenty-six years; am in the livery business; know Jack Swayne and saw him on the 5th of July at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Cross-examined—I kept a saloon about eight years; no one was with me when I saw Swayne; Al. Baldwin was with me; Swayne asked if the boys had returned the saddle which he had borrowed of me a few days before; I had dinner on that day at between 1 and 2 o'clock; after dinner I did some chores around the house; sawed some wood, which took me about half an hour, after which I went into the house and talked about an hour with my wife and children; looked at my watch just as I left the house and saw that it was 20 minutes after 2 o'clock; first recalled the fact of having looked at my time the next week when George Swayne asked me if Jack was not there on the 5th of July; Jack worked for me about a month four years ago; have not told any one that I wished to see Swayne acquitted; am the owner of a trotting horse which I trained at Swinney Park last summer; am not related to any of the Swayne family.

WM. DORR'S TESTIMONY.

I live in Fort Wayne and worked for the bus line on the 5th of July; have known defendant twelve years; I saw him about 3:55 p. m., at the corner of Calhoun and Columbia street.

Cross-examined—I know it was about 3.55 p. m., because I left the bus barn at 3.50; saw him again at 6.40 at the corner of Calhoun and Berry streets; I only go to the hotels so I always leave the barn at a certain time; I worked at the bus barn about two months; Jim Swayne worked there about the same time; have talked with no one about this case; traveled with Forepaugh's Circus six years; I then worked as brakeman on the railroad; Jack Swayne worked at the 'bus barn before I came; I was born at Palestine, Pa.; drove stage from Fort Wayne to Kendallville several years before I went with the show; he had on a dark hat and gray coat when I met him but can't tell the color of his pants when I met him; I said "Hello Jack;" don't know whether any one was with him or not; he was standing on the corner; I was alone at the time; I have not taken any personal interest in the case; know James Remison and Bob DeBar; I did not tell George Bear that I saw Swayne in there on the evening of the 5th; I did not see Swayne there that night; I saw him about twenty minutes before he was arrested; did not see Sheriff Munson around there; when I saw him at the drug store, I was standing there talking to him about a horse; was not talking about John Sheehy nor Lew Clark's dance house; saw Geo. Swayne there also; I saw Jack on the 4th; I know Mr. Hench; I don't remember of seeing Mr. Hench on the evening of the 5th of July; don't remember of seeing A. C. Trentman that night; I did not have it arranged to swear that Swayne was in the barn on the evening of the 5th until the knife business came up, and then located him somewhere else.

Re-direct—Wabash is twenty minutes slower than Columbus which would make the Wabash train due here at 4.10; I hitched up by Columbus time.

FLORENCE BERGER'S TESTIMONY.

My father's name is Rudolph Berger; his place of business is on Main street; his business is a leather dealer; I have lived here about 23 or 24 years; I am acquainted with the defendant; I saw him on Berry street between Clinton and Calhoun, between 3 and 3½ p. m.; I have known him about five or six years.

Cross-examined—I am a single man, and work for my father; am on speaking terms with Jack Swayne; I know his brother; I am a member of the fire department; was a member of the volunteers for about two and one-half years; talked with George on the engine house corner when he asked me whether I had seen Jack on the 5th; he asked me to be a witness in the case; only spoke to him once about the case or my testimony; was going to the fruit house when I met Jack on the 5th; I met him opposite Greenebaum's; I stayed at the fruit house ten minutes; it was about twenty-five minutes of four when I left the fruit house; I looked at my watch when I got to the engine house and it was exactly twenty minutes before 4 o'clock; I have a distinct recollection of that fact; I first remembered that I had seen him at that time when I heard that he was arrested; I heard that he was arrested at about 8 o'clock; I know Mr. Bonter by slight; I know Mr. Walters; I am not related to him or Jack; I don't know where we got acquainted; I know he is not a member of the fire department; I don't know what kind of pants he had on; but he had on a gray coat; I don't remember what kind of a hat he had on.

JOHN M'CARTEY'S TESTIMONY.

I am twenty-two years old; I have lived here nine years; my father is dead; I work at the Pittsburgh depot; I take care of the passenger rooms; I have worked for the company about two years; I quit work on the 5th of July at about 5:15 and went home to supper; I know the defendant; I saw him that evening in front of the Harmon House at about 5:15.

Cross-examined—I worked at the moulding trade about five years before I went to work for the Pittsburgh; Swayne was standing in front of the Harmon House; he was alone; I stopped and talked to him; I know that I don't go home before the whistle blows; it blows at about 5 o'clock; Jack did not say anything about the murder to me; I did not stop anywhere before I went to the Harmon House.

Re-direct—It is about 300 feet from where I work to where I saw Swayne in front of the Harmon House.

J. C. HAMILTONS' TESTIMONY.

I testified for the state; I am slightly acquainted with the defendant; I saw him on the afternoon of the 5th on Calhoun street, between Main and Columbia, on the west side; it was after 2 o'clock and before 3.

Cross-examined—I am a blacksmith; I keep a horse; he is not very fast, I wish he was; people called him fast, but they were mistaken; I saw Swayne on the Fourth with a horse; he was working for Wm. Myers at the fair ground; I got acquainted with Jack there; I didn't know him very well; I seen him but not very often; I met him on the 5th between 2 and 3 o'clock; to the best of my judgment it was about half past 3; I looked at my watch at 2 o'clock and met Swayne about half an hour afterward; he spoke to me and I spoke to him; I don't know what kind of clothing he had on; he asked me a question about some money; I didn't notice which way he went when I left him; I can't say how I remember that I looked at my watch at that time and that it was 2 o'clock, but I remember it; my time piece is all I have to rely on; I heard a woman say that Swayne was in the country at that time and I remembered of having seen him in town myself at that time; I wound my watch at 10 o'clock that night.

MORNING SESSION.

The testimony was resumed at 9 o'clock this morning.

GEO. EMERSON'S TESTIMONY.

Cross-examined—I have been firing on the Muncie about two months; quit working at the bus barn the last of July; commenced working there about the 1st of May last; worked at driving hack and in the barn at various duties; before I worked at the bus barn I worked for the Muncie about a year; before that I drove a truck wagon; before that I was working up in Michigan; clerking in a hotel at Morenci, Mich., in the southern part of the state; before that I was driving a truck for Hank Brown; before that I worked at Olds's spoke factory about four years; am 23 years of age; live on corner of Harrison and Canal street over Baltes's lime house; I am a single man; I worked with Jack Swayne while he was working there about six weeks; I worked there also with Jim Swayne; I quit there about the last of July; I have known James Swayne about ten years; I know Mr. Walters; have known him a long time; we are good friends; know Mrs. Walters; have known her about four years; am in no way related to any of the Swaynes; have not spoken to any one in relation to the case excepting to the Colericks last night; am a horseman; am not a member of the fire department; do not spend much time at the engine house; saw Jack Swayne at the Aveline House corner at about five minutes after four; was driving a man around town by the hour and looked at the court house clock as I as driving down Calhoun street; I don't know anything about how the court house clock keeps time; I remember that he told me when he left the barn that he didn't want to be out over two hours; we drove out to the French Brewery and had three or four glasses of beer; I had not drank anything else before that; we only had four glasses of beer; Swayne was standing at the side of the drug store on the sidewalk near the iron railing; I did not notice who was standing with him; I spoke to him as I went by; he bowed to me; he was standing on the north edge of the sidewalk; I did not know that he was arrested until after I went to supper; I was not a "little off" on time; the doctor (Smith) whom I had out driving that afternoon was not arrested while he was with me; I got him and his wife at the Avenue House; we drove about town and then out to the French Brewry; we came back the same way that we went out, excepting that when we came back we went to get a street lamp; I saw him again that evening and took him out on the street where he sold his medicine; I took him back to the house, and got back to the barn about 9:15; he left the street once very suddenly on the 3rd; I remember that his wife had him arrested on the 6th; he was not arrested while he was with me at any time but on the 3rd; he left very suddenly; I do not know that he was arrested on the 3rd for violating the city ordinance; we were at the French brewery about half an hour: when we came from the barn we drove down Calhoun street; I have no interest in the case further than if I can do Jack any good by telling the truth I am going to do it; I never spoke to any one about the case excepting to George Swayne and the Colericks.

GUSTAVE WOLF'S TESTIMONY.

I live three miles west of the court house on the Columbia plank road; I know where Jacob Weist lives; I live about three minute walk from him; I have lived here about twelve years; I am a diaryman; I do not know what the general reputation of Weist and his wife is in that neighborhood as to truth and veracity; I know that Jacob Weist's reputation is bad in that respect.

Cross examined—I have heard that fact mentioned by Phillip Zinck very often; I have heard his reputation questioned almost every day since this case is in, and so also before this case came up; he promised to pay his rent to Zink, but didn't pay it; the first time I talked with Zink about Wiest's reputation was before harvest; Zink said he was a man with no word; he promised to pay his rent, and never did it; I next spoke to Zink about it shortly afterwards; we talked about his reputation in reference to his pay since this case came into court; Weist and Zink have been having a little trouble about his rent; the fact is, Wiest hasn't many friends out there; no particular hard feeling exists between Zink and Weists; I like Wiest just as well as I do you or any other man; I can't tell who else I have heard speak of Wiest in regard to his reputation; I don't remember of having heard any one else speak of his reputation; I am a veterinary surgeon; my office is on the corner of Clinton and Columbia streets.

MELINDA BERGER'S TESTIMONY.

I live three miles west of the city, about 300 feet from Jacob Wiest's house; I am acquainted with Weist and his wife; their general reputation as to truth and veracity is very bad.

Cross-examined—I have heard the neighbors say that their reputation was bad; I heard one of the Jourdan boys and Mr. Jourdan say that they didn't believe much that he said; have heard a great deal of that kind since then; there has been a great deal said about them since this trial has begun; I also heard a great many others speak about them, in fact almost everyone has said something about them; I heard Emma Miller speak about them several weeks ago; I also spoke with my father about them since the trial began; I don't remember who else I spoke with or heard speak of their reputation; I have heard no one speak of Mrs. Wiest's reputation; don't think that Jacob's reputation was manufactured for this trial; we are not on bad terms.

Re-direct—My father's name is Enoch Becker.

FRED W. FAILSING'S TESTIMONY.

I have lived in this county 23 years; am a farmer; live 2½ miles west of city on the Columbia road; I live on the south side of the road; the Weists live about one-quarter of a mile from my house; I do not know the general reputation of Weist and his wife for truth and veracity in that neighborhood; do not know the reputation of Jacob Weist in that respect; I misunderstood the question; do know what his general reputation is; it is bad; know the reputation of Mrs. Weist to be bad.

Cross examined—I do not know how long Weist has lived there; I first found out that he lived there before harvest; don't know who I first heard speak of his reputation, but it was since this trial commenced; don't know much about it; can't tell who I heard speak of Mrs. Weist's reputation but what I did hear I heard since the trial came up; am not personally acquainted with Jacob Weist and his wife.

Re-direct—I have been a member of the grand jury from October to April; I also keep a diary; do not know the names of any parties who spoke of him as of bad reputation; never heard any one say that they were truthful.

NOT SO BAD.

An Indianapolis Reader Who Has Something to Say for Columbia Street.

To the Editor of the SENTINEL:

Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—I have read your criticism on Columbia street, and the mode and manner of doing business therein, and think you reflected rather severely upon that neighborhood. As I am somewhat familiar with Washington street, the great thoroughfare of the Hoosier capital, I beg leave to state that Columbia street can compare well, in some respects, with it, and actually discount it in others.

I had occasion to visit the two principal hardware stores in this city, and can state without contradiction that there is nothing here to compare with Morgan & Beach's magnificent establishment, or in the stove line with Prescott's palace. The leading hardware stores are very narrow, two little counters with a very small passage between: no light, except at front and a faint twinkling at the rear, compels them to turn gas at midday, while the sun is blazing on side. They have plenty of fine goods, however, but in this respect Columbia street can equal them.

There are no such iron stores here as those of Brandriff and Marsh Coombs—they cannot begin to equal them. A prominent lawyer of this city who visited Fort Wayne recently says, "Nothing here can equal Trentman's house or Fred Eckert's meat market," and I have heard ladies say that nothing in the way of dry goods can compare with Root's or Foster's, neither in the goods or attention of employes to customers.

You have great reason to be proud of your city and its business houses, and will become sure of this when you compare them with those of other places. Perhaps a little gentle criticism may stir up the sluggish ones and correct some loose matters, but do not be too hard upon them

Yours, CAMDEN.

[Our correspondent should remember that neither Marsh Coombs, nor Trentman, nor Root & Co., nor Foster Brothers, nor Fred Eckert is on Columbia street. As to the other firms referred to by him—Brandriff, Prescotts and Morgan & Beach—they, with others, were excepted by the SENTINEL from its strictures on Columbia street business men.—ED. SENTINEL.]

The Business Boom

Is overwhelming Shiefer & Son. A SENTINEL reporter visited that establishment this morning and found the store literally thronged with customers. Mr. Schiefer reports that he has not seen anything to equal the rush for years. He does not know whether to attribute it to the business revival or to the magnificent line of fine goods shown by them. Ladies' and misses' goods are a specialty, and everything desirable that can be purchased is shown by Schiefer & Son.

Hurrah! for the George Woods Organs. C. L. Hill, agent. 1

This is to certify that I have been a great sufferer from piles for six years. I have doctored and have taken almost every medicine that I could hear of but with no relief until I used one package of Dr. Preston's New Medical Compound. I claim I am entirely cured. This medicine acts on the liver and blood, relieves constipation and thus cures piles. The above proved a blessing to me. Yours respectfully,

Stringent Laws Regulating Ohio Life Insurance Companies.

Ohio Life Insurance Companies can now only invest their funds in first mortgage upon real estate, worth double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, in Government Bonds, and in loans upon their own policies not exceeding the reserve value thereof, and must possess a sufficient amount of resources, with the low rate of four percent interest, to meet their obligations when they mature. The superintendent must annually examine every Ohio Life Insurance Company, and see that they possess the necessary investments, and that they are legally made. The laws of Ohio also provide that after three annual payments have been paid upon a life policy, in case of death the Company shall be estopped from defending itself by reason of any errors, omissions or misstatements in the application except as to age or fraud, which in effect makes Ohio policies incontestable after three annual payments have been made. No other state is so strict in regard to the safety of its policy holders. The Union Central Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati is the largest Ohio insurance company, and confines its loans to policy-holders and largely among farmers. It is an institution which is entirely trustworthy, and managed by gentlemen of high standing and large business experience. H. C. Schrader, No. 22 West Berry street, Fort Wayne, Ind., represents this company.
